ITALY, BEFORE COUNCIL, BARS INTERVENTION BY THE LEAGUE

Salandra, Before Session at Geneva, Asserts That His Government Would Consider Any Decision as Unjustified and Urges That Ambassadors Hear Case.

ADJOURNMENT TAKEN TO UNFIXED DATE

Greece Submits New Set of Proposals, Agreeing to Deposit Indemnity Rome Has Demanded and Urging Full Inquiry.

By the Associated Press.
GENEVA, Sept. 5.—Italy's representative, M. Salandra, told the Council of the League of Nations today that Italy would regard intervention by the League in the Greco-Italian controversy unjustified. The League, he said, had no competency in the affair, which belonged properly to the Inter-Allied Council of Ambassadors.

The Italian Government expressed its irrevocable opinion, through him, that the Council should not accept the Greek request that the league take up the matter. By her appeal, said Signor Salandra, Greece thought to escape her responsibilities. He emphasized that the present Greek Government had not yet been recognized by a great number of countries; hence the necessity of Italy to withhold Corfu to obtain satisfaction for the assassination of the Teliuk mission.

The Ambassadors' Council, he said, was the logical body to handle the incident because the question of living up to the terms of the peace treaties was concerned. If the league closed its eyes to this fact, it would be acting in excess of its powers, he declared.

Attacks Italian Viewpoint.
M. Politis remarked that it was for the council to say whether it was competent to deal with the Greek affair and not for one of the parties to the dispute to declare the league's incompetency.

"If such a point of view was admitted," asserted the Greek spokesman, "it would mean the definite ruin of the pact of the league and of the international organism which the pact has made possible, because it would always be possible to pretend for one reason or another, that the pact did not apply to the nations which were parties to the dispute, and also that a nation interpreted the pact differently and that consequently the league's organism would not operate."

"This would mean that the league was not to operate for the maintenance of peace, but merely a kind of official body, effective only when two parties had reached an accord."
In his address, M. Politis declared that the Italian seizures of Corfu was unjustified because Italy already possessed double assurances which were sufficient guarantees, one of the Council of Ambassadors, and the other the League of Nations.
Violation of International Law.
Signor Salandra, in the course of his address, said:

"The brutal assassination of the Italian mission on Greek territory was not only a flagrant violation of the laws of humanity, and the fundamental rules of international law, for which Italy has a right and a duty to insist just punishment, compensation and moral reparation, but also an offense without precedent against the Council of Ambassadors, which had entrusted the international mission with the difficult and delicate task of fixing the frontier between Greece and Italy."

"Though the right of Italy is not dependent on the right of the Council of Ambassadors, the connection between the violation of each of these rights is so evident that Greece has denied that it exists. Gen. Tellini and his companions were assassinated because they formed part of an international mission. There is thus a perfect parallel of the interest of the conference and the interest of Italy."

The assassins, however, chose poor officers for their victims because they were Italians. Violations of the sanctity of human life, which must guarantee to her citizens an offense to the dignity and honor of the nation.

ST. LOUIS QUOTA FOR RELIEF FUND INCREASED TO $1,000,000

Red Cross Executive Committee Sets Goal Higher Than That Originally Fixed —Only Money to Be Accepted.

The Executive Committee of the St. Louis Chapter of the Red Cross today decided to raise $1,000,000 as the St. Louis contribution for relief of earthquake sufferers in Japan. It had been announced earlier by William M. Baxter Jr., manager of the Southwestern Division of the Red Cross, that the St. Louis quota was $650,000.

In announcing the increase to be raised by St. Louisans Melville L.
Wilkinson, chairman of the Executive Committee, said: "This disaster is more terrible than war in that it wiped out entire families and almost everything belonging to those in the stricken area. We believe that $5,000,000 is not an adequate offering from America for such a cause and we in St. Louis are going to attempt to give more than the amount set."

The money is to be collected through the Chamber of Commerce, schools, churches, business houses,
and the Postoffice Department.
Funds must be in the hands of Executive J. Wade, treasurer of the Executive Committee, before Monday morning, the time set for sending the money to Japan. Donations may be made at any bank in the city or county, to mail carriers, teachers, pastors, members of the Chamber of Commerce, and heads of industrial institutions.

Cash contributions only are to be sought, the distance to the scene of disaster making it impractical at this time to collect clothing or supplies.

The quota for the entire Southwestern Division is $550,000, of which the State of Missouri has been asked to collect $175,000. The St.
Louis quota includes St. Louis County as well, with the exception of Webster Groves, where $150,000 of the quota is to be raised. Unsolicited contributions amounting to about $50 had been received at noon today, according to J. H. Byrnes, executive secretary. Another meeting of the Executive Committee will be held at 11 a. m. tomorrow.

The quota for the States, besides Missouri, in the division are: Arkansas, $35,000; Colorado, $70,000;
Kansas, $95,000; New Mexico, $50,000;
Oklahoma, $65,000; and Texas,
$105,000. Kansas City is to raise $25,000 of the Missouri quota of $175,000. The remaining $84,500, not including the St. Louis and Webster Groves share, will come from the remaining 114 chapters in the State.

COL. STEPHEN E. LOWE MARRIED AT ATHENS

Bride Is Miss Emma Wood of Baltimore, Chief Nurse
at Corfu.

By the Associated Press.
ATHENS, Sept. 5.—Col. Stephen E. Lowe of St. Louis, director of the Near East Relief at Corfu, and Miss Emma Wood of Baltimore, chief nurse at Corfu, were married yesterday and sailed for a month's honeymoon in Paris and London. They were to have been married here last Saturday, but the Italian bombardment of Corfu prevented their departure and they did not arrive here until yesterday.

Col. Lowe served as a Lieutenant-Colonel in the World War and was in command of 1200 military police and 125 secret service operatives at St. Nazaire. He had gone overseas as an officer of the 138th (St. Louis) Infantry. Before the war he was an insurance agent and real estate broker in St. Louis.

In a report made after he reached Athens he described the bombardment of Corfu and disclosed that of 20 persons killed 16 were children.
Recently he was given the Cross of St. Xavier by the King of Greece for his efforts in behalf of refugees.
Lowe has a brother residing in New York City and one in Tacoma, Wash.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Doubt as to whether the Bonin Islands, southeast of Yokohama, had been sunk by the quake which rocked Japan, as had been reported, was raised today afternoon when the commercial company announced that the cable station on Peel Island, one of the group, had spoken to Guam repeatedly since the catastrophe.

A statement issued by the Commercial Cable Co. read:
"The Commercial Cable Pacific operating efficiently through Manila, Shanghai and Nagasaki to places in Japan as far east as Nagasaki as Kobe and Osaka."
There is no direct cable communication with Tokyo. The cable between Bonin and Tokyo is broken, apparently 80 miles from Tokyo.

have disappeared cannot be entirely correct. If at all, the cable station tion at Guam repeatedly since the

2 REGIMENTS OF ITALIAN INFANTRY LANDED AT CORFU

Sailors Who Have Been Garrisoning the Island Relieved—Greek Forces Depart for Home.

EX-KAISER'S PALACE MADE HEADQUARTERS

Refugees Sleep Along Streets—Wounded, Mostly Children, Treated in Civil and Relief Hospitals.

By the Associated Press.
CORFU, Sept. 5.—Two regiments of Italian infantry have landed here to relieve the sailors who have been garrisoning the island.

The Greek soldiers and gendarmes, together with the Greek prefect and police chief, have left for home aboard the steamer Imone. They were the last representatives of the Athens Government in Corfu. Vice Admiral Sironetti, the Italian Governor of the island, has published a manifesto, asking the people to be calm and await a decision of the Greco-Italian dispute. He has visited all the military posts established in the interior and along the coast.

The Italian troops have taken up their headquarters at the famous villa which was once the summer palace of the former German Kaiser.

Refugees sleep in streets. With their meager belongings piled about them, hundreds of refugees whose quarters were made uninhabitable by the Italian bombardment, sleep in the open squares and along the streets. And thus the Armenians who fled from the Turks and found a refuge here under the patronage of American and British charities, find themselves again without a roof.

The wounded, most of whom are children, are being treated in the civil and Near East relief hospitals on the island.

It is contended by the local authorities that the Italians fired after they had instructed the Greek prefect to ask the Government at Athens to reconsider its refusal to surrender the island and before the time had elapsed for a reply to be received.

The local Greeks make much of the remark attributed to an Italian officer in the first party which came ashore after the bombardment, which was, "Are there any British hurt?"

Italian Demands. Ten specific clauses were included in the Italian demand for surrender. They were:

"The Greek flag to be hoisted and saluted by 21 guns.

"Command of the island to be taken over by the Italians.

"Barracks to be surrendered by the Greek troops and the Greek gendarmes to be disarmed.

"Depots of arms, munitions and military effects to be surrendered.

"Greek soldiers to be disarmed and concentrated.

"The circulation of officers and troops to be forbidden.

"Barracks to be provided for the Italian troops of occupation.

"Immediate suspension of telegraph, telephone and postal facilities.

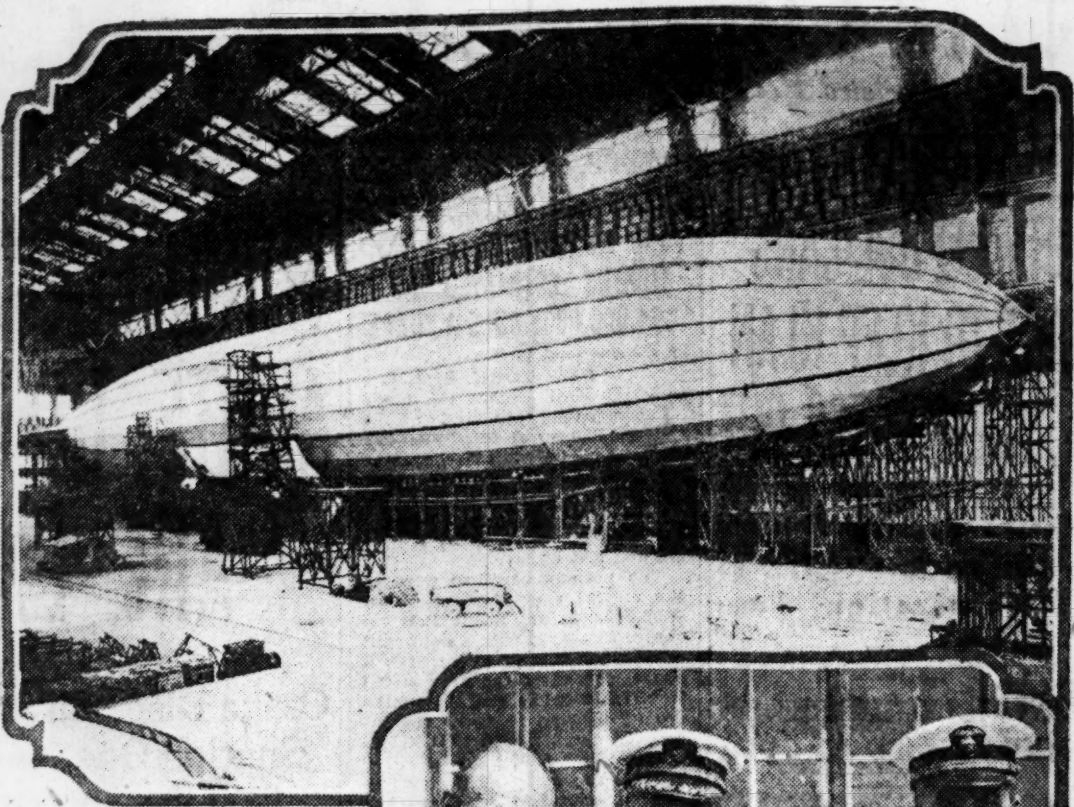

"Control of communications and transports to be given to the Italians.

These demands were refused by the Greeks and it was their non-acceptance that caused the Italians to bombard the place. The Italians have expressed their regret over the casualties and have offered to make reparation to the families of the sufferers.

schini, says a dispatch to the Giornale d'Italia, the Greek prefect was advised to capitulate, but the Major in command said, "Never! I prefer to be shot by the Italians, rather than by my own Government."

However, when the Major left the prefecture he fled in an automobile and has not been heard of since.

The dispatch says that Dr. William A. Kennedy, head of the British Save-the-Children Fund, who protested against the bombardment is an English subject. The correspondent confirms previous reports that the British Consul in Corfu sent to the foreign office a detailed report justifying the action of the Italians.

First of Two Wills of Woman Who Lived in Garage Loft Filed

It Gives Estate to Frank X. Ventura—Other Leaves It to Lawyer for Charity.

The first will of Mrs. Arrena Pierson, 75 years old, who lived in the loft of a garage at 3203 North Nevada street and died at Mullany Hospital Aug. 16, leaving two documents disposing of her estate, was filed for probate today.

The second will, which was intended to revoke the first, was filed the day of her death.

In her first will, dated Aug. 11, Mrs. Pierson bequeathed her estate to Frank X. Ventura of 326 King's Highway Park, who, the document stated, "has always been close to the testatrix, particularly in the last year of her life."

The second will, dated Aug. 12, the day following the making of the first will, directed that after $3500 had been set aside for a monument for the testatrix and her husband, the remainder was to go to charity, designated by William A. Kinnerk, a lawyer, Kinnerk, who was named executor, said today that it was his intention, if the second will was upheld, to divide the money equally between Catholic and non-Catholic orphanages.

Mrs. Pierson owned real estate at 3825 Dolmar boulevard, the value of which has not been determined, but for which $13,000 has been offered, Kinnerk said. She also had a safety deposit box, the contents of which have not been examined. A brother, James Hart, a resident at the Soldiers' Home at Danville, Ill., survives.

NAVY AIRSHIP ZR-1, LARGEST OF KIND, PASSES FIRST TEST

were purchased by a large tire and rubber company before $50,000 of them proved satisfactory for manufacture into fabric of the airship.

Six engines, developing 357-horsepower each and superior, according to naval officers, to the engines used in the dirigibles used by the Germans, drive the ZR-1 with more than 2100-horsepower, as compared with the 1800 originally planned.

Officers say the first flight operation of the ZR-1 over the naval air station here will lead probably within a year, to transoceanic cruises up to the known limit of the ship's ability, or in the region of 5000 knots. The trial flight of the ZR-1 presages a realignment of naval forces in future conflicts for the defense of the nation—a realignment upon three planes: Sub-surface, surface, and air, with rigid airships like the ZR-1 a thousand miles in advance of the fleet, followed by aircraft carriers sending aloft fighting, bombing and torpedo aircraft for the protection of the capital ships on the surface and the capital ships in the air.

2,000,000 Cubic Feet of Helium Made ZR-1 Safe From Fire.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
LAKEHURST, N. J., Sept. 5.—The ZR-1, biggest of all rigid dirigibles now in operation, was made strong where the ZR-2 was weak. In addition, the ZR-1 was filled with helium gas, a nonflammable substance, for yesterday's test. It was the first time that any such quantity of helium gas—2,000,000 cubic feet—was used.

The ZR-1 was "made in America" in every detail, Capt. Anton Heinen, who in the war assisted Count Zeppelin in the designing and construction of German war dirigibles, was the only foreigner connected with its building. He was retained by the navy as consulting engineer.

The Germans are proud of their record as designers and makers of aircraft. It is no secret that Capt. Heinen up to the last moment felt that a green American crew might invite disaster, and that a German crew should be brought over to train the Americans and take the ship out on its first flight. After the trip, however, Capt. Heinen gave high praise to the American crew, which handled the ship under his direction as pilot. He described the ZR-1 as a ship as easy to direct as any he ever handled.

The personnel of the ship's crew on the first flight, according to the log, was composed of: Commander F. R. McCarty, H. D. Weyerbacher and J. R. Klein Jr., chief machinist; Halburton, aviation chief riggers W. A. Beckley and A. J. Green; aviation chief riggers J. M. Collier; aviation chief riggers A. E. Carlson and S. F. Shield; radio man, J. C. Roberson; field machinist mates Barton and O'Sullivan.

The crews of the six engines were: Machinists Mate Russell and Broome on first engine; Machinist Mate Caltman and Owens on the second; Dickinson and Jones on the third; Coleman and Guerkheim on the fourth; Moorman and Cass on the fifth and Dalatian and Sclar on the sixth.

Those who went along as observers were D. M. Dietzman and C. P. Burgess, civilians who helped in the construction of the ship, and Ensign Charles Ebach and Lieut. Mayor of the Naval Construction Department.

Text of New Greek Proposals.

A high political drama was played at Geneva yesterday, when the Greek proposals before a public session of the Council of the League and announced new terms for a settlement with Italy. The Greek proposals follow:

"The Greek Government suggests: First, that the council should appoint one or more neutral representatives (A) to superintend in Greece the judicial inquiry which the Greek authorities have been conducting, and also the trial of those responsible for the Janina murders; (B) assist in the work of the commission which Greece has proposed, through the Council of Ambassadors, for investigating in Albania and Greece the circumstances which preceded and accompanied the crime.

"Second, that the council instruct a commission composed of three high judicial authorities—Greek, Italian and neutral—for example, the President of the Swiss Federal Tribunal, or the President of the Permanent Court of International Justice—to meet as soon as possible at Geneva to settle the amount of indemnities that should be paid to the families of the victims.

"Third, that the council agree that the Greek Government forthwith deposit in a bank in Switzerland $50,000,000 lire as a guarantee for the immediate payment of whatever indemnity may be decided upon."

Those who succeeded in entering the council chamber witnessed a veritable but firm wordy clash between Signor Salandra and M. Politis, and an amiable tossing of oil on the troubled waters by Lord Robert Cecil.

M. Politis, who was born and reared in Corfu, speaking in Greek, with a pronounced Corfu accent, played his second stroke with a fine Grecian touch, but Signor Salandra, always jolly and smiling, won his point in insisting that in presenting his proposals M. Politis should not indulge in the forensic of Demosthenes, but get down to facts, without attempting to argue the justice of the Grecian cause.

M. Politis then proposed the new Greek suggestion, adding that this indemnity was the amount Italy originally demanded.

During the first part of the session, which was private, Salandra announced that he was awaiting instructions from Premier Mussolini on Italy's attitude. When the attendants, three open the doors, making the meeting public, they were almost stampeded by the crowd in the corridor, many of them women. There was a hurried consultation among officials, after which it was announced that only precise representatives would be admitted.

Fortunately, the disappointed league followers were at least able to see the meeting of the council, if not hear, since, on three sides, great glass doors permitted a view of the proceedings, and later many, including some Americans, were able to enter the council chamber.

Athens Wants Prompt Settlement.

When Politis arose he said Greece wanted a prompt settlement.

After summarizing the Greek and Italian official notes and indicating the points Greece was unable to accept, he remarked that Italy demanded capital punishment for the murderers and proceeded to argue that no tribunal would hesitate to mete out the most drastic form of punishment.

But Salandra interrupted with: "That is an opinion. We are here to listen to your offer, not to argue."

Lord Robert Cecil intervened, saying that the public should know all the facts, because publicity was conducive to justice.

Politis remarked that he merely wanted to say what could be made a basis for an eventual arrangement. Salandra, however, was obdurate and insisted that Politis was arguing, and that he himself could not answer because his instructions had not arrived from Rome. He then moved that the sitting be adjourned.

Lord Robert Cecil again intervened, asserting that Salandra was right as to arguments, but that if new facts were available the world should know them as soon as possible, for the situation was grave.

Politis said: "If I get arguments, Signor Salandra can stop me."

Would Mean Direct Negotiation.

The Italian delegate replied: "I refuse that. I insist upon an adjournment. Let M. Politis put his proposition in writing."

Lord Robert suggested that the Greek leader put his plan in writing immediately. Politis and his colleagues retired and returned shortly with the Greek's new solution.

This latest project, which would mean direct negotiation with Italy, but through the medium of the Council, does not involve bringing into play the league mediation, as provided in the covenant, but if accepted by Italy probably would satisfy the league leaders, whose goal is a peaceful settlement, however that may be attained. As the proposition involves the Council of Ambassadors, its text was telegraphed to Paris to get the ambassadorial body's views. The Italians did not disclose their view on the Greek proposals.

The council then decided that as there was a considerable divergence of views on Canada's proposed amendment to article 10 of the covenant, relating to the preservation of the territorial integrity of member states, it was not now in a position to make a recommendation to the assembly.

It was pointed out that in the minds of many governments the question is connected with the problem of disarmament. The Council thought the assembly might want to discuss the two questions together. This may mean the temporary shelving of the Canadian suggestion. The honor of the Italian nation," consequently are added to the violation of international law.

Obligated to Take Guarantees.

"After the Council of Ambassadors has well understood that this terrible crime cannot remain unpunished and if the news which has been published is correct, Greece has recognized its responsibility by declaring that it will submit to the decisions of the Council. Italy, whose rights have been seriously offended, has on her side claimed punishment of the guilty and moral and material compensation.

"In order to secure execution by Greece of her obligations, Italy has felt obliged to take guarantees which are all the more necessary as the inferior moral position of the Greek Government, which has not been recognized by many large states, and its present attitude could not ensure the confidences which alone would have requested a guarantee superfluous in the circumstances.

"Greece, with great skill, has endeavored to escape its responsibilities by turning the attention of the public and of the League of Nations away from the crime that has been committed by endeavoring to direct attention to the seizure of a guarantee.

Blames Greeks for Fatalities.

Salandra submitted to the Council a written statement, declaring the Greek commander at Corfu failed to inform the Italians before they opened fire that he had troops sheltered there, as well as troops, and failed to send the refugees to the cellars of the citadel when the bombardment began. He added that the commander of the Italian fleet had visited the wounded in the American and Greek hospitals and extended them aid.

Lord Robert Cecil of England insisted that articles 10, 12 and 15 of the covenant of the League of Nations should be and in English and he declared that if these articles were to be disregarded, the whole settlement of Europe would be shaken.

The articles in question were cited by Greece in her appeal to the league and stipulated that the Council of the league has a clear right to an investigation when there is danger of rupture between any of the states which are members of the league.

Further consideration of the Greco-Italian situation was adjourned to an unfixed date, but perhaps tomorrow, in order to give members of the Council time to examine the Italian declaration and decide upon their future action.

WALE, AS PLAIN PEER, DEPARTS FOR HIS CANADIAN RANCH

Prince Goes to Station Alone and His Traveling Bag Has No Top Hats or Uniforms.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Sept. 5.—The Prince of Wales left London today for the great open spaces of his Canadian ranch, traveling as Lord Renfrew, just a plain peer, as his highness is going away to rough it a bit.

None of the members of his family went to the Waterloo Station to bid him good-by. For royalty does not offer ceremonial farewells to a mere peer. He drove to the station alone, not as the Prince who sets fashion for what the well-dressed men will wear, but just as a young nobleman in a gray overcoat which shows its age.

He wore a pair of heavy shoes that were poorly polished, and a comfortable slouch hat, stained by sun, rain and dirt. There wasn't one uniform, not even a top hat, in his traveling bag. It was the first time in his life, perhaps, that he was able to make a trip without ceremonious habiliments.

But the Prince could not quite get away with the attempt to be a mere noble lord of the realm, for several thousand of his father's subjects assembled at the station and to them he remained the Prince of Wales, heir to the throne and the most popular young man in the empire. They cheered him until he had to raise his hat and nod his head several times, but it plainly bored him to have to do so.

Canadian suggestion makes it clear in the article that no state would be called upon to go to war without the consent of its Parliament.

KOBE, Sept. 5.—The first Yokohama refugees arrived here at midnight Monday and more still were coming in today.

All are clothed as they were at the time of the earthquake and they brought the first definite news of the casualties in Yokohama, including the American Consul, Max D. Kirjassoff; Horne and Griffith of the British Consulate, besides Dr. Wheeler and W. R. Mason, two very old inhabitants there.

The refugees confirm the previous report that not a building remains in Yokohama except the tottering fragments of the Standard Oil office.

Came at Noon Without Warning.

The disaster came at noon without the least warning. There was one great crash followed by almost continuous tremors until evening.

The Union Club, a great rendezvous, was almost empty at the time, as the members were seeing friends off on the steamship Empress of Australia. When the wharf rocked like any reference to the loss of warships.

The Rev. S. H. Wainright, a veteran missionary and former pastor in the St. Louis Southern Methodist conference, is known to have been at his Tokio headquarters last week.

It is thought that Prof. Roy F. Smith and wife, representing St. John's Methodist Church at Kobe, are safe. A cablegram from Miss Margaret Beal at Kobe to her father, O. H. Beal of 5020 Garfield avenue, yesterday advised that that city had not been affected by the disturbances which overwhelmed Tokio and Yokohama.

Mr. and Mrs. John O'Fallon of 5142 Waterman avenue are thought by friends to be in the Philippine Islands. They wrote a St. Louis acquaintance that they were sailing from Kobe for Shanghai Aug. 15 and would then depart for Manila.

REPORTS BELIEF ALL AMERICANS IN TOKIO ARE SAFE

Ambassador Woods in Message to State Department Places Estimate of Dead There at 10,000.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—All Americans in Tokio are believed to be safe, Ambassador Woods reported today to the State Department. Estimates of the dead in Tokio were placed by the Ambassador at 10,000.

He stated that some Americans in Yokohama had been killed. Communication with Yokohama, he said, had been opened.

Ambassador Woods' message was sent by wireless from Iwakai yesterday. It follows: "Communication has just been opened with Yokohama. Situation there exceedingly serious and some Americans are reported to have lost their lives. The casualties in Tokio are estimated at 10,000. I believe all Americans in Tokio are safe. The food situation is acute. Send supplies from Philippines at once as already requested."

Yokohama Vice Consul Safe.

Vice Consul Sam J. Wardell at Yokohama, according to the dispatch, is safe, but other members of the staff have not been accounted for.

The dispatch added that the naval hospital at Yokohama collapsed and Commander Webb was injured while some of the staff were killed.

Sending of a warship to take care of naval patients, a step which already has been taken, was suggested.

A report from Consul Erie R. Dickover from Kobe said:

"Refugees report that the following members of the consulate at Yokohama are safe and well: 'Miss Martin, Nason, and Vice Consul Leo D. Sturgeon and Wardell.'" Kirjassoff's Children Escaped.

Vice Consul Paul E. Jenks was reported to have been killed, the message said, but the two children of Consul Kirjassoff, who was killed with his wife, are safe and well in Kobe.

Prof. Henry Fairfield Osborn, president of the trustees of the American Museum of Natural History, New York, and Mrs. Osborn, who were reported to have been in the Japanese earthquake area, are safe in Shanghai, John K. Davis, American consul at Shanghai, reported today to the State Department.

Report of Deaths Confirmed.

A message from Consul H. B. Hitchcock at Nagasaki said he had been reliably informed that Consul Kirjassoff and wife and Vice Consul Jenks and Habbitt in the consulate general at Yokohama had been killed.

Consul Hitchcock added that clearer reports of the situation in Tokio and Yokohama were being published in Nagasaki and that "Yokohama has suffered relatively worse than Tokio."

Relief work in Yokohama, the report said, was being organized by Consul Hitchcock in co-operation with the American Consul at Kobe and the British Consul at Nagasaki.

The Japanese embassy received today its first word from the home Government. It announced the formation of the new Cabinet, essentially as carried in press dispatches, with Count Yamamoto as Premier and Minister of Foreign Affairs.

Yamamoto Apparently Unhurt.

Importance was attached to the message to the Japanese embassy because it was signed by Premier Yamamoto and was dispatched the day after the earthquake, indicating to embassy officials that no harm had befallen the Premier.

The Cabinet was the same as announced in early press advices with two exceptions. Minister of Education Okano and Minister of Justice Hirakuma, as designated for those portfolios in the earlier press advices, were not mentioned, whereas Minister of Agriculture and Commerce Den was given also the portfolio of Justice, and Minister of Communications Inukai also was given the portfolio of education. Both Okano and Hirakuma have been reported in press dispatches as missing after the earthquake.

By the Associated Press.

First of Utah Hoegemen Leaves Vernal, 8 Hours Ahead of the Schedule.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Sept. 5.—Across the stretches of Utah's mountainous northeast the pony express rider rode on today, with more than 1000 miles of revival of the pony express rail ride from St. Joseph to San Francisco behind him.

Utah riders took over the mail at Vernal, Utah, at 3:32 p. m. yesterday, when the last Colorado rider, Ralph Saulsbury of Denver, dropped it after riding in record time from Crawford, Colo. Saulsbury rode the 104 miles between the two towns in six hours and 24 minutes. The actual running time of the pony express rider when Vernal was reached yesterday was 84 hours. Eighteen hours had been subtracted for stops at control points since the ride began.

The first Utah rider left Vernal at midnight last night, the arrival there of the previous rider having been nearly eight hours ahead of schedule.

Narrow roads are to be traveled by the riders between Vernal and Salt Lake City. The mail is expected here this afternoon. Vernal is about 200 miles distant.

STRESEMANN IN PLEA TO PRESS TO BACK RUHR PLAN

Chancellor Said to Have Succeeded in Allaying Fears of Extremists That He Will Surrender Reich.

BY SAMUEL SPEWACK,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and the New York World.
(Copyright, 1935, by the Press and Publishing Co., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.)
BERLIN, Sept. 5.—Chancellor Stresemann appeared at the German press conference yesterday to elaborate on his Stuttgart address. His purpose—and in the afternoon it appeared he had accomplished it—was to allay the fears of the Deutsch National extremists that he was delivering the Reich, bound hand and foot, to Poincare. He told newspaper men he welcomed England, Belgium and America in an industrial union, though a Franco-German union first was imperative to solve the Ruhr problem. He pointed out, however, that placing faith in England hitherto produced little results.

Turning to passive resistance, he enunciated his new formula, "Elasticity." The correspondent has pointed out that he has sought the formula of capitulation and "elasticity," meaning that local bodies should interpret for themselves passive resistance and stepping out from under as best they can. This is in addition to his desire to point out to Poincare that passive resistance is a dead issue.

Stresemann, on the whole, is elated with the effect of his speech abroad. His one big fear is that before negotiations are under way successfully, either the communists or the reactionaries may start action aimed at the dismembering of the Reich, which would nullify his peace efforts.

Another disquieting report was an apparently authentic one reaching the Foreign Office that France contemplates negotiating a political and economic pact with Russia.

This would serve to clinch French leadership in Europe, as well as dent Germany's assets in the form of valuable industrial contracts with the soviets. The correspondent has received assurance that the Quai d'Orsay soon will issue intimations of its intentions.

Zoological Society to Celebrate.
The fifth annual celebration of the Zoological Society of St. Louis will be held tomorrow night on the Sea Lion Plaza of the Zoo grounds from 7:30 to 10 o'clock. The grounds will be decorated with Japanese lanterns and electric lights. Mayor Klet and Congressman Newton will speak. The public is invited.

LUMBER FOR REBUILDING TOKIO AND YOKOHAMA ORDERED IN U. S.

Sharp Increase in Price of Pacific Lumber Expected as Result of Demand for 500,000,000 Feet.

By the Associated Press.
SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 5.—Cable orders from Kobe, Japan, for approximately 500,000,000 feet of lumber for use in the rebuilding of Yokohama, Tokio and other Japanese cities laid in waste by earthquake and fire, were received yesterday, according to statements made by representatives of steamship and Northern Pacific mills.

Orders from Japan for Douglas fir and cedar logs brought demands to the Robert Dollar Co. and Northern Pacific mills for more than half a billion feet alone, it was stated.

This new demand comes at a time when the world lumber demands were slackening, lumber men stated. A sharp rise in the price of Pacific lumber will follow the huge demands, it was predicted.

Man Hit by Train Seriously Hurt.

Charles Green, 40 years old, a painter, of 2115 Park avenue is in a serious condition at City Hospital with a possible fracture of the skull, lacerations of the scalp, and a fractured right leg, as the result of being struck by a Missouri Pacific passenger train under the Chouteau avenue viaduct at 8 a. m. today. Employees of a nearby packing house told police that Green was walking on the track when struck.

New Silhouettes
in Autumn Wraps

One of the foremost of the styles in Coats this Fall is this flared model of black fur-trimmed quina cloth, trimmed in red fox fur. Special emphasis should be given the new cut of sleeve seen recently on many Paris models. The fashionably dressed woman proclaims this model true chic.

Entirely different is this Mangone model of Rodier matelasse, fitting the figure in the wrap effect. Skirt is flared with wide bands of kolinsky dyed squirrel; collar and cuffs are also of kolinsky. (Right.)

Charming black fur-trimmed Cape elaborately embroidered in crystal and steel beads, which are an important factor in trimming this season. Collar is becomingly draped of the velvet. (Left.)

Taupe cloth Coat in blouse effect with blouse of natural mole, collar is of kit fox; a very dressy model. (Right.)

Here's a Mangone model entirely different, and very striking in effect, with applique of gold and embroidery of silk in brown on a lighter background, long straight model with handsome collar of fox fur. (Center, above.)

Another flare model in brown marvella cloth, with long flare cuffs, collar and coat flare trimmed in handsome bands of Vistula squirrel. (Left.)

GRAND JURY TOMORROW WILL TAKE UP ROSS INDICTMENTS

Circuit Attorney Selects Cases in Which Collections Were Deposited to Ross' Personal Account.

Several additional indictments will be sought against Donald W. Ross, former Special Deputy State Finance Commissioner in charge of liquidation of the defunct Night and Day Bank, when the grand jury reconvenes tomorrow. Circuit Attorney Sidener stated today. Ross already is under indictment on a charge of embezzling $28,250 of the bank's funds. A recent audit of his accounts revealed a "constructive cash deficit" of $167,762.97. Ross is at liberty under a bond of $25,000.

Sidener said numerous cases were presented to him in a conference yesterday when Bank Examiner Gilles, who has had charge of the bank liquidation since Ross was relieved, but that he was going to place only four or five of them before the grand jury.

The audit of Ross' accounts, conducted at the direction of State Finance Commissioner Millsap, showed two checks, totaling $10,591.22, which, according to the audit, were collected for the benefit of the bank but deposited to Ross' personal account. Both of these matters will be placed before the grand jury, Sidener said. One is a check drawn by Oregon E. and R. G. Scott for $7248.75, payable to John G. Hughes, then State Finance Commissioner. It was dated Sept. 9, 1932. The audit shows it was deposited in the Citizens' Security Bank of Kansas City.

The other check alleged to have been deposited by Ross in personal funds was one for $3342.47, drawn by the law firm of Miller & Case, and payable to Ross as liquidating officer. It represented collections made by the attorneys on obligations due the bank. It was deposited in the Liberty Central Trust Co. St. Louis.

GREEK CHURCH AGAIN IN COURT

Corporation Sues Eight Former Trustees for Damages.

The Greek Orthodox Church of St. Nicholas, Garrison and St. Louis avenues, once more is in court with its troubles. The corporation today filed suit for $20,000 damages against eight former trustees and another suit for $5000 against two of the members named in the first action. It is alleged that Constantine Cassimatis, Thomas Theofanellis, Joseph Constantine, James K. D. Tennes, C. Johannides, Apostolos Glaseris and Gustave Theodorow, who were entrusted with the business affairs of the congregation from January, 1922, until January, 1923, managed things inefficiently. A law suit by the Rev. Father Mark E. Petrakis, former pastor, was settled last July by payment of $1800 back salary and expenses to the priest. The petition asserts that the trustees involved the church in "costly litigation." It further alleges that the defendants held meetings without the consent of the congregation at which they increased salaries of employees and transacted business without authority.

WOMAN STILL OPERATOR FINED

Judge English Talks of Jailing a Wife or Mother as Example.

Fining Mrs. Teresa Origlasso $200 on her plea of guilty of operating a whiskey still in her home. Federal Judge English of East St. Louis yesterday said that liquor law violations could not be condoned because the violators happened to be women. He added that women "moonshiners" and "bootleggers" were becoming numerous and that in a flagrant case he was in favor of sending a mother or wife to jail as an example. Mrs. Origlasso lives in Washington Park, a suburb of East St. Louis.

KLAN LECTURER MISSING 10 DAYS

Friends Believe Texas Pastor Was Spirited Away or Killed.

Renfro, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Sinton, Tex., on the banks of the San Antonio River here, a search is being instituted for the minister under the belief that he has met with foul play. 16-YEAR-OLD GIRL WROTE LOVE LETTERS TO MAN SLAIN IN SALOON

Planned to Be Married to Jack de Luca, Murdered in Same Place Where Her Father Was Shot.

Miss Nancy Frai, 16 years old, of 2619 Franklin avenue, was questioned today by detectives investigating the case of Jack de Luca, 35 years old, who was shot and killed, apparently for revenge, Monday night in his saloon at 2250 Washington avenue. She said she had written the love letters found among De Luca's effects, but denied knowing anything of the murder. She said they had planned to marry when she became 17.

At the same time her brother, John Frai, 23, who had been arrested, told detectives that he had been too busy hunting the slayers of his father, John Frai Sr., who was slain in the Washington avenue saloon Oct. 3, last, to bother about De Luca. "De Luca was a nice fellow," said Frai. "He had many women friends. One of them was married. He made love to my sister, too. I knew all about it, but I had no objection."

Frai denied that he had told his sister to remain away from De Luca's saloon. He said he had abandoned his search for the slayers of his father to be in court when his trial on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon comes up next Monday. He said he had followed the slayers to Sidney, O., but had lost the trail there. "I know the men, and they will not live long after I find them," said Frai. "They were blackmailers. They killed my father because he would not let them shake him down for $200."

Frai related to detectives the details of a "moonshining" enterprise in St. Louis County, in which, he said, he and his father and De Luca were financially interested, but from which they withdrew in 1921. There were 22 men in the company, he said, and each invested $300. They leased a farm near Kirkwood, he said, and manufactured 20,000 gallons of whisky a month. Two former St. Louis policemen, he said, acted as selling agents for the company.

PLAYGROUNDS ATTENDANCE INCREASES 119,596 IN YEAR

599,270 Persons Use Municipal Pools in Five Months Just Ended.

Attendance at St. Louis playgrounds from April 1 to Aug. 31, was 119,596 persons in excess of attendance in the corresponding period of 1922, Park Commissioner Pape said today. Attendance in 1923 was 1,338,659 as compared with 1,219,063 in 1922.

Attendance at swimming pools in the five months' period just closed was 599,270. Attendance at Fairground pool this summer was 144,263, a decline from 224,452 last year, due, Commissioner Pape explained, to the fact that Fairground pool was closed six weeks for construction of a new locker building. Attendance at Marquette pool increased from 201,412 in 1922 to 204,855 in 1923. There have been 12,628 golf permits issued this year as compared with 11,209 in all of last year. Tennis permits total 31,290, as against 32,824 in all of last year. The three municipal bathhouses accommodated 13,032 persons from April to August, inclusive.

MAID, 15, ADMITS $1800 THEFT

Says She Took Clothes and Jewelry to Charn Young Doctor.

Clothing and jewelry valued at $1800, which were taken Monday from the home of Mrs. Rudolph Franklin, 4404 Wallace avenue, by a maid employed 10 days ago, were recovered by the police yesterday in a rooming house at 1413 Olive street in the possession of Melissa Miller, 19 years old, who was arrested.

She said today that she took the clothes in order to appear attractive in the eyes of a young physician, a chance acquaintance, who had said to her that he admired well-dressed girls. She said she was an orphan and came to St. Louis from Cleveland three weeks ago.

Silver Dollar of 1868 Found in Old Chair

The chair bore a tag "Made by Wm. Prufrock, St. Louis." Although this chair was over fifty years old, it was still in good condition.

It pays to buy quality, irrespective of price, yet Prufrock-Litton upholstered furniture is inexpensive, because it is made in their factory, Fourth and St. Charles, and sold direct.

OF BROTHER'S HOAXIllinoisan Freed After 4 Months and Joker Enters Cell for Forgery of Other's Check.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 5.—Behind the walls of the Chester (Ill.) penitentiary an innocent man, without indictment or trial, for over four months has been suffering, under protest, the fate of a convicted criminal, the victim of a remarkable hoax perpetrated by his own brother on the Sheriff of Union County.This was revealed today by the State Division of Pardons and Paroles in announcing the release of Andrew Kerley from the prison and the simultaneous commitment of his brother, Frank Kerley, the real culprit. Out of the hundreds of cases of alleged mistaken identity coming before the Pardon Board yesterday, this is one of the few ever to be proved bona fide.Almost a year ago Frank Kerley pleaded guilty at Jonesboro, Ill., to forgery, and was sentenced to the penitentiary. He had forged a check payable to his brother, Andrew.
While waiting to be taken to prison,
he escaped from jail.All efforts to apprehend him failed, and nothing was heard of him for months later, when Sheriff Henry G.
Hilleman of Union County found in his mail one morning a letter from his escaped prisoner.

"Frank Kerley's" letter.

The letter was signed "Frank Kerley." He wrote that he had joined the army shortly after his escape from jail, that he had been arrested for some offense committed in the army and was being held in the guardhouse at Jefferson Barracks, near St. Louis, Mo. His guardhouse sentence, he said, would be completed in a few days, and he signified his willingness to serve time for the forgery committed in Union County if the Sheriff would come to Jefferson Barracks and take him back. He stated, however, that he had joined the army under the assumed name of "Andrew Kerley" and was known at Jefferson Barracks by that name.The Sheriff confirmed these reputed facts apparently by corresponding with the commanding officers at the barracks and then sent a Deputy Sheriff over to get the prisoner. When the deputy arrived the soldier protested he was not the prisoner wanted, but was, in fact, Andrew Kerley, and not Frank.The deputy, however, had the commitment papers for the man and could do nothing but take the man back to Illinois. It happens that Chester is on the direct route to Jonesboro, so instead of taking his prisoner to Union County, he stopped off at Chester on the return trip and delivered his prisoner. The man was received at the penitentiary as Frank Kerley, alias "Andrew Kerley."

The Deputy Didn't Know.

The deputy who delivered him to the prison authorities was not in Union County at the time Frank Kerley was sentenced and was not acquainted with either of the Kerley brothers. The brothers look alike, although Frank, the real convict, is about 21 and Andrew, the innocent man, is 25.After studying the matter over for two months in prison, the man delivered there as Frank Kerley asked for an interview with Warden Petrie. He laid his case before the Warden in such convincing terms that Petrie immediately began an investigation.Two months later, principally through the efforts of M. T. Marby, State Parole Agent, located at Mount Vernon, Ill., the real Frank Kerley was located near Elmo, Mo., where the mother of the boys resides.The investigation showed that Frank, knowing his brother Andrew was in the army and was about to be released, told the army authorities he was wanted in Illinois, and then, procuring by some means a sheet of official army paper, wrote to Sheriff Hilleman the letter which took the innocent Andrew to the penitentiary.were married Nov. 26, 1903, and separated Feb. 14. Their home was at 2217 McCausland avenue.Polychrome Mirrors

HAMMOND, Ind., Sept. 4.—Hugh Lynn, a special policeman, was shot and seriously wounded here last night by men who robbed the Speedway Inn at Burnham, near here, of $12,000, the receipts for Sunday and Labor day. It was learned today when the officer was brought to the hospital here. An employee of the resort notified Lynn of the holdup and as he entered one of the robbers opened fire. They then forced the bartender to open the safe and escaped toward Chicago.

HEAVY QUAKE LOSS AT HEALTH RESORT FEARED

Many Believed to Be Dead at Nikko, Where Empress Has Been Spending the Summer.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Sept. 5.—A Central News dispatch from Shanghai says it is feared that Nikko, the health resort at which the Japanese Empress has been staying during the summer, was destroyed with terrible loss of life. Nikko is situated north of Tokio and approximately 80 miles south of Niigata.

Dr. Wheeler and a Mr. Mollison, British residents of Yokohama, and the French Consul there are among the dead, says a Central News dispatch.

From the same source it is learned that all foreigners staying at Miyanoshiba are safe with the exception of one named Hirst. Large numbers of the Japanese residents of Tokio and Yokohama are returning to those cities, but they are being dissuaded in this course by the authorities.

The British Consul at Kobe reports that thousands of foreign refugees are arriving there.
The American steamship Selma
City is reported to have been damaged during the upheaval and to have run ashore near Yokohama.
Suzuki & Co., Japanese merchants in London, have informed Lloyds that, as far as they could ascertain, there was no great loss of shipping from the earthquake.

SHIP LINES TO PROTEST TO U. S. ON CONSUL'S IMMIGRATION ACTS

Swedish Company Sends One of Its Managers to Visit State Department.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Officials of steamship lines operating between the United States and Sweden announce that they will make formal protest to Washington against what they term arbitrary restriction of visas on passports for this country by the American Consul General at Stockholm. George E. Hansen, acting general manager of the Swedish-American line, left for Washington today to present the matter to the State Department.

According to the officials, Consul General Murphy last month posted a notice, in which he said that because Sweden's immigration quota for the year beginning July 1, was nearly exhausted, he would not vise passports for immigrants other than those having blood kin in the United States who were already citizens, had applied for citizenship, or were eligible for citizenship for citizenship because of service with the military forces. Steamship officials declared that hundreds who had sold their property, expecting to come to this country, have been thrown into consternation by the order. They insist the Consul General has no authority to restrict immigration.

ROAD BIDS BEING RECEIVED

State Getting Offers on 5,000,000 Tons of Gravel.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 5.—The State Highway Commission today is receiving bids on $2,000,000 worth of road-grading work, 3,000,000 tons of washed gravel and 2,000,000 tons of road surface gravel as part of its five-year road-building program in various counties of Missouri. Hitherto contractors on State road work have purchased their own materials, but the commission decided that money could be saved if the State bought in large quantities, and then sold to the contractors. Several days will be required to analyze the bids offered for material supply and if they are too high the commission may establish plants to obtain and wash gravel for road construction.

shine" whisky in Hite's pockets.

Auto and Store Thefts.

Harry Frederick, 22 years old, was sentenced today to five years in the penitentiary for first-degree robbery and two years for grand larceny on his plea of guilty before Circuit Judge Grimm. The sentences are to run concurrently.

Frederick was caught operating a stolen automobile in which Thomas O'Toole, William Murphy, Eugene Garnett and Dan O'Brien were riding. These men were jointly charged with the theft with Frederick. Their cases will be tried Oct.

2. The first-degree robbery charge was based on the theft of the car.
The grand larceny charge, which is also pending against Murphy, was Only Pathway of Peace.

We have formed the habit of peace, we think in terms of peace. Differences arise, but our confidence in each other's sense of justice and peaceful intent remains unshaken. The only pathway of peace is that in which our peoples are talking together. In the depths of our grief at the loss of the great leader, whose every thought, whose instant endeavor, were directed to the establishment of peace, it is a precious memory that almost his last words were spoken on the soil of our country testifying to our abiding friendship, our mutual interest, our common aims. Let these words of the late President ever remind us as the expression and assurance of abiding peace; our promotion is in our fraternity, our arm is in our faith; the tie that binds us firmly year by year is ever-increasing acquaintance and comradeship through interchange of citizens. The compact is not of perishable parchment, but of fair and honorable dealing which, God grant, shall endure for all time.
Continuing Hughes said: "When I consider that the inability to maintain a just peace affects the future of civilization itself, we may be less confident of the success of our artificial contrivances to prevent war. We must recognize that we are dealing with the very wool and warp of human nature. The way to peace has left its curse of hate, lasting injuries, its breeding wounds of strife, and to secure an abiding peace appears to be more difficult than ever. There is no advantage in shutting our eyes to the fact that the human race has to tread the path of peace, but we must tread it."
Hughes said that the pathway of peace is the longest and most beset with obstacles the human race has to tread; the goal may be distant, but we must move on.
Means of Redress Necessary.
If war is outlawed, other means of redress of injuries must be provided. Moreover, few, if any, in-

ALL THINGS POSSIBLE IF NATIONS ARE JUST TO EACH OTHER, HUGHES ASSERTS

Secretary Addresses Canadian Bar on “Pathway of Peace”—Suggests Permanent U. S.-Can- adian Commission to Foster Friendship.

By the Associated Press.

MONTREAL, Sept. 5.—Pressing economic rivalries of nations, like armaments will be kept within reasonable limits by fair international agreements “at no distant day,” Secretary Hughes said last night in an address before the Canadian Bar Association on “The Pathway of Peace.”

The American Secretary of State asserted that “all things are possible if nations are willing to be just to each other,” and, in a personal appeal to his Canadian audience, suggested the creation of a “permanent body of our most distinguished statesmen” to act as a commission for the United States and Canada.

Hughes said it was desirable that nations should more definitely establish the law “to quicken the sense of the obligation of states under the law.” He assailed “demagogues” and “pseudo patriots,” who, he said, sometimes made it difficult for democratic governments to obtain legislative approval for the mutual concessions necessary for settlement of important international questions, and he declared it was impossible to carry out diplomacy “to the point of keeping the public constantly advised of all the intermediate steps of negotiations.”

Suggests Permanent Body.
“We have at this time,” he said, “discussing American-Canadian relations, under our treaty of 1909 relating to boundary waters and questions arising along the boundary between Canada and the United States, an International Joint Commission with powers of investigation and report within the scope of the treaty. While I do not undertake to speak officially upon this subject, I may take the liberty of stating as my personal view that should do much to foster our friendly relations and to prevent those misunderstandings and irritations which, if we were to have a permanent body of our most distinguished citizens acting as a commission, with equal representation of both the United States and Canada, to which automatically would be referred, for examination and report as to the facts, questions arising as to the bearing of action by either side upon the interests of the other, to the end that each reasonably protecting its own interests would be so advised that it would avoid action incurring unnecessary injury upon its neighbor.”

“We rejoice in our long friendship and in permanent peace, and it would be a short-sighted view that of us has any real interest which is to be promoted without regard to the well-being of the whole of the consideration of which conditions good will. I am saying this personal word as much to the people of the United States as to the people of Canada; it breathes neither complaint nor criticism, but a desire for the co-operation of our friends, each secure in its independence and in the assurance of peace.”

Only Pathway of Peace.
“We have formed the habit of thinking in terms of peace. Differences arise, but our confidence in each other's sense of justice and our mutual interest remains unshaken. It is the only pathway of peace in which our peoples are working together. In the depths of the conflict at the loss of the great war, whose every thought, whose constant endeavor, were directed to the establishment of peace, it is a precious memory that almost his words were spoken on the soil of our country testifying to our friendship, our mutual interest, our common aims. Let these words of the late President ever remain as the expression and assurance of abiding peace; our program is in our fraternity, our armament is our faith; the tie that binds us firmly year by year is ever-increasing acquaintance and confidence through interchange of citizens. The compact is not of perishable parchment, but of fair and honorable dealing which, God grant, shall endure for all time.”

Continuing Hughes said: “When we consider that the inability to maintain a just peace attests the failure of civilization itself, we may be confident of the success of our efforts. It is generally thought that democracies are disposed to peace, but this is yet to be demonstrated where there is deep feeling and a national sense of injury. There are governments with an essentially democratic basis where the executive power is still able to conclude many important international agreements without reference to the Legislature; but this is due to the persistence of special traditions. “Usually in democratic countries a final or co-ordinate authority which rests with the Parliament or Legislature. The more important the agreements, as insuring peace by settling bitter disputes, the more certain it is that they will involve ‘mutual concessions.’ Thus, in each country it is likely to be insisted that the other has gained at its expense, and this tend to outlaw self-defense, a right still confined to individuals under all systems of law.

“To meet this difficulty, the usual formula is limited to wars of aggression. But justification for war, as recently demonstrated, is ready at hand for those who desire to make war, and there is a rare case of admitted aggression, or where on each side the cause is not believed to be just by the peoples who support the war.
“There is a further difficulty that lies deeper. There is no law for independent states. There is no legislature to impose its will by majority vote, no executive to give effect even to accepted rules. The outlawry of war necessarily implies a self-imposed restraint, and free peoples, jealous of their national safety, will not forego the only action at their command in extreme exigencies. The restraints they may be willing to place upon themselves will always be subject to such conditions as will leave the malleable to afford self-protection by force, and in this freedom there is abundant room for strife sought to be justified by domestic or international grounds of national interests, by long-standing grievances, by the apprehension of aggression to be forestalled.
“The Constant Difficulty.
“It is this difficulty which constantly suggests recourse to force to maintain peace. People who would engage in war, it is said, must be compelled to be peaceful; there should be an international force adequate to prevent aggression and to redress wrongs. The analogy of domestic peace is pressed; the force of the state—that is, of all the people—maintains the authority of the municipal law and compels public order.
“In considering the use of international force to secure peace, we are again brought to the fundamental necessity of common accord. Great Powers agreeing among themselves may indeed hold small Powers in check, but they will hold great Powers in check when great Powers disagree? The trust in force must in truth be trust in common agreement behind the force.
“All contrivances for maintaining peace by economic pressure, as well as by military force, depend upon the sentiment which will apply the pressure and direct the force when the test comes. Such arrangements are likely to fail when they are needed, because national interests are diverse and quantity of action under stress of crises involving conflicts of opinion is well nigh impossible. There is no path to peace except as the will of peoples may open it.”

Work of Constant Effort.
“The way to peace is through agreement, not through force. The question then is not of any ambitious general scheme to prevent war, but is the highest task of statesmanship in relation to every possible cause of strife, to diminish among peoples the disposition to resort to force and to find a just and reasonable basis for amity.
“It is most desirable that all discussions of international relations should not revolve about questions of policy and expediency, however important these may be, but that, along with this necessary discussion, there should be the determination to re-establish the law, to quicken the sense of the obligation of states under the law.
“As soon as possible the codification of international law should be undertaken. It would be difficult to conceive a process requiring more deliberation and patience. For at every step the general consent of nations must be had, and at every step the simplest matters the opposing policy and objections of some nation will be encountered. The difficulty must be met by conference, and by conferences which have the sole object of promoting the codification and development of law.
“Some of Plans Discussed.
“Plans for commissions of inquiry for periods of cooling off for the use of good offices are all important and may be efficacious to a gratifying extent. But these measures deal with cases already aggravated, and it may well be doubted whether in grave crises they would avail.
“We have to take account of both the advantages and disadvantages of international law. It is generally thought that democracies are disposed to peace, but this is yet to be demonstrated where there is deep feeling and a national sense of injury. There are governments with an essentially democratic basis where the executive power is still able to conclude many important international agreements without reference to the Legislature; but this is due to the persistence of special traditions. “Usually in democratic countries a final or co-ordinate authority which rests with the Parliament or Legislature. The more important the agreements, as insuring peace by settling bitter disputes, the more certain it is that they will involve ‘mutual concessions.’ Thus, in each country it is likely to be insisted that the other has gained at its expense, and this

NAVY PLANS RAPID DEVELOPMENT OF PACIFIC AIR BASES

Ten-Year Program, Reported by Willard Board, Would Involve Expenditures of Large Sums.

CANAL ZONE AND HAWAII INCLUDED

Alameda and Sand Point, Wash., Depots Also to Be Built Up if Plan Is Adopted.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Analysis of the report of the Willard Board, recently adopted by the Navy Department as the official program for development of naval air stations, shows a determination to develop Western depots during the next 10 years.

It is believed by students of strategy that there is more than chance in the fact that this period coincides with that during which no construction will be in progress on battleship replacements. Under the five-power naval treaty they will begin in 1931 when three vessels will be laid down to take the place of the Florida, Utah and Wyoming.

Successive Increments.
The Willard Board recommended the expenditure of only $820,000 in the 1925 budget for air stations, comprising $554,000 for the Canal Zone and $266,000 for Hawaii, but successive annual increments as follows:
1926: Canal zone, $325,000; Hawaii, $220,000; Alameda, $50,000; Sand Point, Wash., $120,000.
1927: Canal zone, $210,000; Hawaii, $261,000; Sand Point, Washington, $150,000; San Diego, $150,000.
1928: Canal zone, $294,000; Hawaii, $85,000; Alameda, $175,000; Sand Point, $265,000.
1929: Canal zone, $300,000; Hawaii, $110,000; Alameda, $170,000; Sand Point, $145,000.
1930: Hawaii, $300,000; Alameda, $109,000; San Diego, $100,000.
1931: Hawaii, $346,000; Alameda, $355,000; Sand Point, $131,000.
1932: Alameda, $74,000; Sand Point, $300,000; San Diego, $165,000.
1933: San Diego, $159,500; Hawaii, $150,000; San Diego, $150,000.
1934: Hawaii, $725,000 (to complete).

Atlantic Coast to Wait.
Under the approved schedule the Alameda project would be completed in 1935 with an appropriation of $370,000 and the Washington station in the following year with a similar appropriation. The Guantanamo fleet base air station would be started in 1938 with an allowance of $570,000, to which would be added $595,000 in 1939 and $420,000 in 1940 when the project would be completed.

The Atlantic Coast bases will be allowed to wait, until the approved program, until those on the Pacific are well under way. The marine base at Quantico, Va., would be the first to be taken up, with considerable extent with appropriations of $45,000 in 1929 and $310,000 in 1930, completion of the project being carried over to 1933. Work on the fleet base station at Hampton Roads would start in 1932, with completion set for 1933. Projects at Pensacola, Fla., and Anacostia, D. C., are not scheduled for final commissioning before 1942. That at Chesapeake, Mass., would be complete in 1943, and the Cape May, N. J., Key West, Fla., and Charleston, S. C., projects in 1944.

gives exceptional opportunity to critics who assume the most extreme position on patriotic grounds.
“Hindrances to Quick Action.
“Aside from honest criticism, modern negotiations furnish rare opportunities for the ready tongue of demagogues. There are today serious questions between peoples which ought to be taken up and settled in order to heal festering sores. But those in charge of foreign affairs do not dare to undertake to negotiate agreements because they know that in the presence of attack inspired by political or partisan motives the necessary adjustment could not be approved by the legislative branch and would evoke such an acrimonious controversy on both sides that matters would be made worse instead of better.
“The discussion of international agreements naturally and properly engages the attention of the public press, but that also not only gives opportunity for reasonable criticism, but for the pseudo patriots to seize a point of vantage against the Government they desire to attack. It is suggested that all would be easy if negotiators would simply tell the public everything that they are doing. But the trouble is that in every negotiation, as all business men know, there are preliminary positions to be taken, tentative plans to be discussed, arguments to be presented and demolished, and nothing can be accomplished if every sug-

Home Town Tales Cal Coolidge

This is the third of a series of intimate stories concerning President Coolidge, as related by his townsfolk in Northampton, Mass., where Coolidge still remains just “Cal.”

ALVIN COOLIDGE was running for Mayor of Northampton, 1910. It promised to be the first serious political fight of his career, as the town splits nearly fifty-fifty on its local elections. A few days before the election Cal strode into the office of an intimate friend, who prefers that his name be withheld.
“I’d like you to write a story of my life,” said Cal simply.
“Sure, I will, Cal,” came the answer. “But what do you want that for? You won’t die for a long while yet.”
“I want it so I can send out circulars,” said Cal.
“All right, Cal, just as you say, but what do you want circulars for? You don’t think anybody reads political circulars, do you?”
“Well, I’ve been thinking it over,” said Cal slowly. “And I figure they’ll read ‘em all right if I put 2-cent stamps on ‘em. Most folks round here don’t get any mail. It’ll be like a letter to ‘em.”
Cal got his circulars, and was elected.

NEAR EAST RELIEF TO END WORK IN TURKEY

Personnel and Warehouses to Be Transferred From Constantinople to Athens.

From a Staff Correspondent of the Manchester Guardian, the Post-Dispatch and the New York

(Copyright, 1923.)

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 5.—The American Near East Relief has decided to terminate operations in Turkey. It is transferring its personnel, administrative forces, personnel and warehouses from Constantinople to Athens.

This decision was due to the Ankara Government insisting upon imposing import duties on relief supplies which is the equivalent to a veto of the continuance of relief work.
The Greek Government, on the contrary, gives every possible assistance and co-operation.
The relief work will reduce the American colony in Constantinople by more than 100, will result in the discharge of an equal number of native personnel and deprives Turkey and the city of Constantinople of an annual expenditure of $1,000,000 by the Near East Relief. Only a forwarding agent will be maintained here to supervise the passage of relief supplies to Armenia and the Caucasus through the Straits of Paros.

NORTH DAKOTA FARMER-LABOR PARTY FORMALLY ORGANIZED

Non-Partisan League's Industrial Program Adopted as One of Platform Planks.

By the Associated Press.
FARGO, N. D., Sept. 5.—Public ownership of all public utilities, passage of Federal child labor laws and indorsement of the industrial program of the Non-Partisan League, are among the planks in the platform adopted by the Farmer-Labor party of North Dakota, organization of which was effected here Monday night. Approximately 50 labor representatives from all over the State attended the meeting.

T. E. Beals of Dickinson, representative of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers, was elected president; Sam Johnson of the Women's Auxiliary of the Trainmen's Union at Grand Forks, was chosen treasurer.
Beals also indorsed the minimum wage law for women as it now stands on the State's statute books, and adopted resolutions demanding a special session of Congress to formulate some plan for the relief of agriculture.

gesture, every advance and every retreat must be publicly made.
“Open diplomacy is openness of retreat. The absence of secret agreements and understandings, not the immediate publication of all intermediate steps.
“Sources of Irritation.
“Perhaps the most troublesome sources of irritation are to be found in the subjects which states properly decline to regard as international in the legal sense. But in these days of intimate relations, of economic stress, and of intense desire to protect national interests and advance national opportunity, the treatment of questions which from a legal standpoint are domestic often seriously affects international relations. The principle, each nation for itself to the full extent of its power, is the principle of war, not of peace.
“But the case is not hopeless. What could be regarded as more essentially a matter of its own concern than the provision a state should make for its own defense, the arms it should provide, the number and armament of its battleships. Yet we have recently seen the great naval Powers, obedient at last to the desire to end a ruinous competitive struggle in arms, voluntarily agree to reduce their fighting ships to agreed proportions. I believe that we shall be able at no distant day to keep within reasonable limits some of our pressing economic rivalries by fair international agreements in which the self-interest of private will submit to mutual restrictions in the furtherance of friendly accord.”

COOLIDGE AND HAYNES CONFER ON DRY LAW

President Said to Desire Closer Federal and State Enforcement Co-operation.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Prohibition enforcement problems were discussed yesterday at a lengthy conference between President Coolidge and Prohibition Commissioner Haynes.

Their conversation dealt particularly with the proposed conference of State Governors on prohibition.
Mr. Coolidge is said to be satisfied with the progress thus far made in enforcing prohibition and with the operation of the present enforcement machinery, but to be desirous of effecting closer co-operation between Federal and State enforcement officers. The President hopes that at the forthcoming conference steps to this end will be taken.

Haynes, after his talk with the President, said concrete proposals would be made at the Governors' conference by Federal officials in an effort to bring about such co-operation.
Among the proposals, probably, will be one for the calling of conferences in the various states of local officials to discuss the problem of more effective prohibition enforcement and for meetings of church members and civic organizations whose aid in promoting law observance will be sought.
There is no immediate prospect of a change in the prohibition enforcement organization or of an extension of agencies, Haynes said.

C. OF C. RENEWS THE FIGHT FOR WABASH TRACK DEPRESSION

President Vesper Contends Court Decision Has No Bearing on Compromise Viaduct Plan.

JUDGE'S DECISION MEANS ELEVATION

Renewal of Negotiations With Railroad May Deal Separately With Delmar Crossing.

Further efforts to reach a compromise on the plan of eliminating the grade crossing of Delmar boulevard at the tracks of the Wabash Railroad, despite a decision in the Cole County Circuit Court which knocked out the city plan of track depression, and, in effect, ordered track elevation, are urged by President Vesper of the Chamber of Commerce, in a statement issued today. The city has indicated that it will appeal from the decision, handed down last Saturday, and carry the fight, already in progress about 12 years, to the Supreme Court.

Vesper says the court decision should have no bearing on a substitute modified plan recently agreed to by the Chamber of Commerce and Wabash, which provided for the Delmar viaduct being built with a clearance over tracks of 22 feet, and leaving the method of separating other crossings in the vicinity to the future. Property owners and some city officials opposed the compromise on the ground that it violated the city principle of track depression at other points.

“Adopted Wabash Program.”
Referring to the court decision which knocked out the city plan and, in effect, reversed the State Public Service Commission order for track depression, Vesper said:

“It is unfortunate that the court has passed on the matter and adopted the Wabash plan as a whole, of complete elevation over all streets through the west end of the city, including Delmar where the tracks would go 22 feet over the street.
“It was just this contingency that the modified plan would have taken care of, by stopping the case in the courts and getting the Delmar crossing fixed now, leaving all other crossings to be handled separately in the future; meanwhile, clinging to the principle of the city plan at Delmar.”

The Chamber of Commerce “is utterly opposed” to track elevation “and will do everything possible to prevent it,” he said.
Vesper said the present situation should cause the West End Grade Crossing Association and the West End Business Men's Association, which opposed the compromise, “to see the critical necessity for prompt action by joining with the Chamber of Commerce in indorsing the modified plan, without prejudice to the manner of separating any other crossings in the future.”

“In my opinion the thing to do now is to get the crossing at Delmar eliminated, and leave the principle for the other crossings to be fought out in the future,” Mayor Kiel said today. He said the property owners should agree to the compromise plan for Delmar, as it would give them the track depression plan they favor.

President Kinsey of the Board of Public Service, who fought the compromise, said he was certain the appeal from the Cole County Circuit Court would be carried up to the Supreme Court, and expressed the opinion that all civic organizations should get behind the city to carry on the fight against track elevation.

PLAN LEGAL MOVE.

C. H. Rodenhaver, president of the West End Grade Crossing Association, said a meeting of the organization would be called early next week to plan pushing the legal fight. He said the association was unalterably opposed to track elevation, but might agree to a viaduct over the tracks at Delmar, with 22 feet clearance, if the Wabash would make an stipulation that it would not attempt to elevate its tracks at other crossings to be separated in the vicinity of Forest Park.

Wabash officers said President Taussig was out of town, and as far as was known, no effort to renew the compromise negotiations had been taken up with the railroad.
Judge Westhues, in reversing the commission order upholding the city plan, stated that apparently the only material opposition to the Wabash plan of solving the problem of traffic in private manufacture of arms and ammunition.
In view of the interest of the United States, it was decided to postpone action on the question pending a reply from Washington to the suggestion.

BRITAIN URGES IMMEDIATE ACTION BY LEAGUE COUNCIL IN ITALO-GREEK CRISIS

Admiralty Said to Protest on Strategic Grounds That Occupation of Corfu Challenges Command of Mediterranean.

By JOHN L. BALDERSTON,

Dispatch and New York World.

Publishing Co., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.)

LONDON, Sept. 5.—Mussolini's threat to withdraw Italy from the League of Nations, should the league intervene in the Italo-Greek crisis, has emphasized the gravity of the situation which other information from competent sources here reveals as most menacing.

The British attitude in face of the Italian dictator's defiance continues adamant. Renewed instructions were issued yesterday to Lord Robert Cecil at Geneva to press for immediate decision by the league council, and above all not to countenance any maneuvers seeking by compromise to postpone action for months during which the league assembly sits. Admiralty, it is learned authoritatively, has submitted to the Government a memorandum protesting on strategic grounds against Italian occupation of Corfu, pointing out that as a submarine base this neutralizes Malta and challenges British command of the Mediterranean.

Serbs Prepare to Aid Greece.
Instructions were issued that the fact of the existence of this memorandum should be kept secret, the British policy being to get the league to take action and offer the support of the British fleet if necessary to direct the league mandate rather than protest singly against the new force to British naval predominance.
Lack of news from Jugoslavia is not interpreted in informed diplomatic quarters here as meaning the Serbs intend to remain quiescent. On the contrary, information is that the Jugo-Slavs are quietly preparing for war as allies of Greece, in event the Italians remain at Corfu and the League of Nations fails to invoke international sanctions against Italy.

Secretary Hughes, it is known here, has asked the fuller report on the Italian shelling of orphans at Corfu and hope is expressed that the United States may protest diplomatically on humanitarian grounds against the killing of civilians.

France Holds Key to Problem.
The key to the problem remains in France. With France objecting to coercion against Italy, it is feared the league will be unable to move effectively.

Strong hope still exists here, however, that the pressure of the Little Entente on Paris, coupled with French objections to Italian naval bases being extended so as to threaten French communications with Syria and the Black Sea, will outweigh French politicians, who see in the present crisis a chance to win Italy away from British influence.

The Italian Ambassador yesterday informed Lord Curzon of Mussolini's decision to withdraw from the league if the league persists in dealing with the quarrel and was reminded that such withdrawal would not, under the league covenant, exempt Italy from possible sanctions and also that Italy is bound by her word to give two years' notice before she ceases to be a league member.

In official quarters it was pointed out that, while the treaty duty of England and France to maintain the neutrality of Corfu lapses under the Lausanne treaty with Turkey, that right, under one of the annexes to the treaty, is specifically transferred to the League of Nations.

COOLIDGE MAKES HIS FIRST PUBLIC SPEECH AS PRESIDENT

Greeted 500 Members of Association of Postoffice Clerks at the White House.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Making his first public address since he became chief executive, President Coolidge advised 500 members of the United National Association of Postoffice Clerks, whom he greeted today at the White House to render to their country “everything an American citizen should desire—loyalty, hard work, and the best of our nation, strengthening its character for yourselves and those who cooperate with you.”

The President greeted the clerks from the steps of the south portico of the White House as “My fellow workers in the public service of the United States.”

“You are the direct representatives in your various communities of the Government of the United States,” he told them. “You get your inspiration, I hope your inspiration, oftentimes from the city of Washington. You are the people who carry out these directions and you give the public the impression that they receive of the efficiency of our public service. You are a picked body heading up the position not by favor, not by the good graces of any man or any set of men, but by no reason of an examination and by reason of your having demonstrated that you have the capacity, the ability, the intelligence, and I think I may say, the spirit that renders you worthy of the confidence that is reposed in you.”

ALLIED VETERANS INDORSE OCCUPATION OF THE RUHR

American Delegation Joins With Those of Other Nations in Ap- proving French Action.

By the Associated Press.

BRUSSELS, Sept. 5.—The delegates of War Veterans' Associations representing seven allied countries at their fourth annual congress adopted a resolution yesterday indorsing the occupation of the Ruhr as the legal means to obtain reparations under the Versailles treaty. The American, Czech, French, Rumanian, Belgian and Jugo-Slavian delegations approved the resolution unreservedly, while the British, after a short discussion, introduced an amendment dealing with the effects of the occupation and the unemployment element in the United Kingdom and it also was approved.

PROBLEM OF ARMS TRAFFIC

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Sept. 5.—The Council of the League of Nations was officially informed yesterday that the United States is considering the suggestion that it co-operate in some plan of solving the problem of traffic in private manufacture of arms and ammunition.
In view of the interest of the United States, it was decided to postpone action on the question pending a reply from Washington to the suggestion.

COMMENT IN ENGLAND ON MUSSOLINI THREAT

View of Some Newspapers Is That League Is in Great Peril and May Be Dissolved.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—Friends of the League of Nations among the British newspapers are gravely perturbed at Mussolini's threat to withdraw, should the league insist on intervening in the Greco-Italian conflict.

“The league is challenged at its foundation, it must take up the challenge or abdicate,” says the Daily Chronicle.

The Morning Post asserts that the league is now at the crisis of its career and that it almost looks as if the present situation would be its death warrant.

Other newspapers urge the league to stand fast and not allow itself to be intimidated by the Italian Premier, which would mean suicide.
On the other hand, both the Daily Mail and the Daily Express indulge in tirades against Lord Robert Cecil. The latter newspaper visualizes the dire consequences of the league's withdrawal from the application of a moral and economic boycott of Italy, which it says would spell war, in which Great Britain and France would have to do most of the fighting.

The Manchester Guardian comments: “League crises are different purposes for different men. If Mussolini means seriously, and in cold blood that Italy will withdraw from the league rather than accept its intervention, then the league is in great peril. If it surrenders to Mussolini's life would be lost, and it is clear that the treaty of Versailles would not long survive the league.”

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 5.—Gov. Pinchot this afternoon led committees of anthracite mine operators and miners union officials once more into conference in an effort to reach a settlement by which the suspension of mining operations might be brought to a end.
There was no indication from any of the parties to the controversy of any change in attitude toward the Governor's peace proposals when they went into executive session.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

Forcible Vaccination.

PERMIT undersigned to call your attention to the fact that people coming into St. Louis on trains from points south of here are still being welcomed at Union Station by a strong-arm squad, consisting of police and health officers. The doctors vaccinate people whether they wish to be vaccinated or not, and pay no attention to protests of citizens. They are given the option of submitting to vaccination or leaving the city, not being permitted to pass the gates. The police are ably seconding the efforts of the doctors to make St. Louis popular with visitors. They take an ideal method of letting people know that Chicago or Kansas City is a better place for them to spend their money.

A farmer and his wife from a small Missouri town came to St. Louis, intending to make a two days' stay here and then go on to Iowa. They used every argument that they could think of to evade vaccination. The slogan seemed to be: "Get vaccinated or get out." It is not the injustice of the whole procedure that the writer wishes to stress, but the utter stupidity and assistance from a medical standpoint. To the onlooker the way that these "health officers" handled the situation was extremely funny. The theory of vaccination is that a mild form of the disease is induced by the attenuated cow pox virus; that, having had this mild form of smallpox, the person vaccinated was immune for a period of years.

Suppose that a trainload of people had come from some place where there was a smallpox epidemic. These arrivals were in one of two conditions—immune themselves, but carrying the disease in their hair, clothes, skin and their belongings; infected themselves and carrying germs wherever they went. If these people were immune, vaccination did not help them. If they were infected before coming here, why did the doctors add to the infection by injecting a little more of the same virus?

If these arrivals were supposed to carry the disease, as would be the case if they came from an infected district, why were they not quarantined? Why were they allowed to distribute themselves all over the city and spread the disease which might hurt in hair, skin, clothes and belongings? Why were they allowed to go, some of them, to the most congested part of the city and develop the disease at their leisure?

Does the idea of forcible vaccination assume that infection or contagion is more readily carried in the meager furnishings of a day coach than in the more luxurious upholstery and hangings of a Pullman? Perhaps Dr. Jordan or Dr. Starkie would explain what theory of medicine poor people, unable to afford Pullman or parlor-car accommodations, are forced to submit to vaccination while those fortunate enough to be able to ride in the Pullman are exempt from this kind of meddling. Why are some allowed to pass unchallenged through the gates at Union Station while others are forced to submit to vaccination?

Oh, most sapient doctors! Oh, most discriminating Board of Health! Oh, most silly public to submit quietly to these outrages! How long, oh, how long, are we going to put up with the nonsense of these drivellers who are scaring travelers away from our city? We are the joke of the whole country now.

AN AMUSED SPECTATOR.

Prohibition Falsehoods.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
The articles recently published in many newspapers by Prohibition Commissioner Haynes have contained many misstatements of facts and more false conclusions, but none more so than last Sunday's article.

He spoke of Dr. Dio Lewis and used his fair name to support and to prove the blessings of prohibition. To prove the utter unreliability of Mr. Haynes, it will suffice to say that Fowler & Wells are the publishers of a book which I have in my possession, written by Dr. Dio Lewis of Boston in 1873, the title page of which reads as follows: "Prohibition a Failure."

Thus perisheth still another prohibition falsehood. Bring on the next, boys!

HENRY A. KERSTING.

Profiteering in Milk.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
WHY should the price of milk be increased again? Last year the price was 10 cents a quart and the dairies did not go broke. This year there is more milk than the demand calls for, and yet the law of supply and demand does not work because of the Milk Trust. The price to the farmers was lowered early last spring, and we have not yet had the retail price cut.

It is about time our Aldermen would get busy and do something for the consumer. Better yet, if the consumers get busy and call a milk strike. Use other milk from other localities, such as canned milk or malted milk. The dairies cannot improve this by showing their books. Mere words from them do the consumer no good. If the dairies give the drivers a raise, let the dairies stand the expense, not push it on the consumer. We pay too much now.

ONE WHO KNOWS.

RELIEF FOR JAPAN.

Today the Red Cross opens a campaign for a fund of $5,000,000, to be used for the relief of the stricken population in the area of the Japanese earthquake. The sum is modest, in view of the disaster, which may easily be recorded as the greatest in history.

The extent of losses of life and property and of the distress of homeless and wounded persons grows as the actual facts become known. Estimates are still guesswork, but the highest so far given place the deaths at 240,000, injured at 250,000, and several millions homeless in need of immediate relief. The property losses run into billions.

The Government of the United States, under the direction of President Coolidge, has done all in its power to render quick aid. Its available resources are limited. The appeal is now made to the people of the United States to do their part in supplying money, food, clothing and other necessities to save life and prevent extreme suffering. Missouri is placed in a division of six other states—Colorado, New Mexico, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas and Arkansas—with a quota of $550,000. The State of Missouri and St. Louis as the principal city of the Mississippi Valley, should do their full part quickly. The money is needed at once and the quota should be filled by prompt voluntary subscriptions, without the necessity of an organized drive. Delay would be fatal to the main objects of the relief fund.

The American people have proved their good will and generosity in measures of relief for war-stricken peoples organized and financed on a vast scale. The sum asked by the Red Cross is a bagatelle compared with the sums contributed for relief in Belgium, Germany, Russia and the Near East. There is special reason for promptness and liberal response in this case. Until the Washington conference there was friction, suspicion and an unfriendly spirit existing between Japan and America. This feeling was largely dissipated by the co-operation of America and Japan in formulating and signing the disarmament and the Pacific peace treaties. It will be eliminated by the prompt liberality of Americans in going to the rescue of Japan's stricken population. That will be the best possible expression of sympathy and good will.

Of the $150,000 allotted to Missouri the St. Louis fund is $65,000, to which the Post-Dispatch contributes $500.

A LABOR PAPER.

In his speech at the Labor Day picnic of the Central Trades and Labor President Manion of the Railroad Telegraphers complained of the treatment labor received in the press and advised the purchase of a newspaper to be published frankly as a labor organ. He said there was a morning newspaper in Chicago that "probably could be bought for $10,000,000."

Before investing so largely in such an enterprise labor, it seems to us, might advisably await the result of the New York experiment. The Call of that city, a Socialist publication, has recently been taken over by a corporation representing the trade unions. Success in that venture might warrant the larger undertaking recommended by Mr. Manion.

The prospects of the Call, however, under its new ownership and management, seem dubious in the light of reports from London that the trade unions have decided to suspend the Daily Herald after a costly experience. If a Labor paper cannot prosper in England, notable for the strength of its trade unions and where the Labor party, already the recognized opposition, expects, and is expected, to become the Government, what chance would such a paper have in the United States?

Organized labor is making sound business progress in this country. It is developing economic and an economic policy. It has established and is operating labor banks as faithful concerns and for the larger purpose of amassing and controlling its financial resources for its own betterment. It will doubtless find other fields of business activity for its capital and talents. But the proselyting publication, the journalistic special pleader for any cause—witness, for example, the passage of the raving, ranting partisan sheets we used to have—looks like a sure way of losing money.

HEALTHFUL USE OF ALCOHOL.

Gov. Sproul reiterates his charge that President Harding's death was hastened by his strict observance of the Volstead law. To everyone except the fanatical prohibitionist the charge has a basis of possibility. President Harding was living under a severe nervous strain. The glass of Scotch to which Harding was accustomed might have relieved the daily tension and prevented the breakdown.

Summing up his chapter on the effects of alcohol on the nervous system, Dr. J. Starke, author of "Alcohol: The Sanction For Its Use," says that one of its great benefits is the relief from nervous strain. He says alcoholic drink in moderation "is no luxury, it is a necessity, a nervous hygienic measure of the highest importance."

Dr. Charles P. Woodruff, surgeon in the United States Army in the Philippines, in a report strongly denouncing prohibition, says that, attacked by the diseases peculiar to the tropics, 11 per cent of the total abstainers from alcohol died, while about 3 1-2 per cent of the moderate drinkers died, and less than 2 per cent of the excessive drinkers died. A similar ratio existed among those invalided home. And he adds:

"I suppose some medical editors would advise hiding these figures on the ground that they would be an advantage to the whisky dealers who buy Kansas corn from prohibition farmers. They would no doubt rather see our soldiers die than let them know that a drink of wine at meals might save their lives."

Not only have many sick persons died for want of alcoholic stimulation, under the Volstead tyranny, but there can be no doubt that large numbers of well persons, both men and women, especially those past middle age, who had always been accustomed to drink in moderation, using alcohol as an appetizer, a digestive, a nerve sedative and a factor in their daily well-being, have been victims of prohibition. Their lives have been shortened and their declining years made miserable by the cruel and unnecessary deprivation. And all to no purpose. The drunkard we have with us always. He is not reformed by such enforced examples.

The eighteenth amendment prohibits alcohol as a beverage, but not as a medicine. It does not forbid the people to possess or use it medicinally. A law recognizing and putting into effect this principle and permitting the people to buy a moderate amount of liquor, under strict regulation, for use in the home, would put the bootlegger, the bootlegging doctor and druggist out of business, restore American self-respect and respect for law, and be a means of promoting good health, good will and all-around happiness. It would be a life-saver.

BREAD ON THE WATER.

The Federal barge line made a record in wheat tonnage last month. It carried 1,354,707 bushels. The saving in transportation costs was $53,223.57.

Important as those figures are of themselves their real significance lies in what the river might do for the people of the valley. J. P. Higgins, assistant to the manager of the Mississippi-Warrior service, says that, with its present equipment, the barge line can carry 3,000,000 bushels per month, and that its motive power is capable of carrying twice that quantity were barges available. In other words, the $50,000 saved to shippers of wheat in August can be raised to $200,000.

And wheat is but one commodity. Just what might be saved in transportation costs if the Mississippi River were developed and employed to its carrying maximum is hardly calculable. It would be tremendous, surely.

A certain type of mind enjoys speculating as to the verdict of posterity on the present age. Be it kindly or adverse as a whole, the judgment will likely be severe as regards our acquiescence in letting our rivers go to waste, particularly at a time when transportation costs were admittedly burdensome and the problem of economic distribution threatened the industrial structure.

Putting the rivers to work at full stride ought to be a national slogan, with the farmer shouting most insistently of all.

Wheat on the river truly is bread on the water.

PLAYING WITH FIRE.

(From the New York Evening World.)

You will be interested to know what is going on at St. Jude's-on-the-Hill, which is a church in the suburbs of London. The following is from the Daily Mail:

Mayfair and Belgrave are always in search of a sensation, and the few remaining in town have been making a pilgrimage to the Hampstead Garden suburb, where at St. Jude's-on-the-Hill every Sunday and Thursday the Rev. Basil Bourchier has been making sensational discourses on betting and other evils in America, whence he has lately returned. Last week motor cars galloped lined up, and smart men and many Americans thronged the place.

The intimation that Americans are not very smart is not so surprising as that anyone should get such an impression of the United States as the Reverend Basil brought home with him. Most of us are disposed to regard our own country as rather more moral than most. Thrasymachus thought the doctor must have been in Maine, where we are told that the people have the pernicious habit of betting on

THE OLD WORLD.

LONDON—It was only after writing the play, "Abraham Lincoln," that the poet, John Drinkwater, woke to find himself famous, and he has been at that sort of thing ever since. He has subsequently written plays around Oliver Cromwell and Mary Stuart, and his latest companion piece to these is "Robert E. Lee." Some of our two-story thinkers had never been quite sure whether the success of "Abraham Lincoln" was to be attributed to the literary skill of Mr. Drinkwater or the great affection in which Mr. Lincoln is held; so that when we learned that "Robert E. Lee" is running at the King's Cross Theater we all piled out there to see it.

Apparently there was no great excitement in London about it, judging by the attendance, which is not strange, since to England our Civil War was both a long time ago and of no great matter to a country which is abundantly able to have its own wars. Nevertheless, the theater was something more than half filled; some of those present were evidently Southern people from our own country whose sympathy with the subject was marked.

Mr. Antwine thought the play a reason which he was at pains to explain to us. It was well played, but the gentleman who appeared in the part of Robert E. Lee was never quite the leader of the Confederate armies, though he did look like Lee and gave a beautiful performance. The difficulty was in meeting our conception of a man whose qualities were peculiar to the old aristocracy of the Southern United States. This is something which we know when we see it, and it is not something which a player who has not seen it would be capable of. It had much to do with the fine impression which Lee made upon the country despite the handicap of having led the armies of the South against those of the North. It took Virginia, with her generations of genteel traditions, to produce Robert E. Lee, without that flavor the characterization could not be true to us. Possibly, Mr. Antwine said, the Lincoln of Franklyn missed the real Lincoln just as much, but in the immensity of Lincoln there is plenty of room for whatever we will, just as it is not necessary that all the portraits of Napoleon should look alike. We can see Napoleon in them all.

The rest of us agreed that this was about right. We enjoyed the play, and we thought the South especially would enjoy it when it went to America; but it is not another "Abraham Lincoln," any more than we shall ever have another Abraham Lincoln, another Theodore Roosevelt or another Colossus of Rhodes.

OLD JOKE.

Everybody called him Joke, which is the German nickname for Jacob. In this instance it has nothing to do with the English "Joke," a country blockhead.

He was an old farmer in my native valley, and a barefoot boy, often saw him, bent with age, shuffling along with short steps to church. And when the preacher warmed up to his peroration and in excited tones described the glories of the New Jerusalem old Joke's face would light up with joyful anticipation until his emotion got the better of him and he would become "happy"—that is, have a religious "shout." In this condition he would indulge in a succession of quick, vertical jumps, crying "Hebe, lebe, lebe"—life, life, life!

Everybody said old Joke could not be shaming—he was too honest and old for that—and the general conviction was that on such occasions he was really blest with the baptism of the Holy Spirit.

But one Saturday, during a political campaign, there was a great Democratic rally in front of the Spread Eagle Hotel. Eloquent speakers from the county seat enthused the crowd. And old Joke was there, for he was a hard-shell Democrat. And when one of the speakers enlarged on the glorious principles of Democracy and the certainty of Democratic victory, Joke had a "shout"—precisely like those that overtook him at church.

Then the half-dozen Republicans (or Abolitionists, as they were then called) ventured the opinion that Joke's political shout could have nothing to do with the Holy Spirit and that his shouts in church were probably only ordinary excitement.

But the Democrats adhered to the view that Joke's spells of exaltation were genuine: Why could not the "Spirit" be outpoured at a Democratic rally as well as in church?

WASHINGTON AT YORKTOWN.

From the New York Tribune.

ANY hitherto unknown letter of Washington, of course, be of interest and value which reveals him at a supreme moment in his career is a priceless find. Such a find which has just been unearthed by the House of Representatives, a document characteristic of his writer, but rare among the annals of mankind. Consider the man. It was written a month after Yorktown.

It was the man who, from Cambridge in the summer of 1775 to Yorktown in the autumn of 1781, had borne the heat and burden of the war. He had fought the battle of the Clouds at Pennsylvania; he had turned at bay at the House of Representatives; he had suffered martyrdom at Valley Forge; he had suffered the treason of Lee at Yorktown; he had conducted the march to the Old Dominion. And now, at the end of the war, he was writing this letter.

His emotions of gratitude and affection must have been inexpressible. But what was his comment to his friend upon the crowning mercy of Yorktown? It is an interesting event and may be of value to us in the future. It should be the means of relaxation and of us into supineness and security. It had happened.

Washington surely felt the joy of the more keenly than any of those who had shouting themselves hoarse over his victory. He rose above exultation, and in such a personal triumph as comes to few men, he looked beyond the victory to the future. He was looking for the day when the world he looked beyond the victory to the future. He was looking for the day when the world he looked beyond the victory to the future.

INCREASE OF MOB VIOLENCE.

From the Chicago News.

FOR some years previous to 1923 the lynching evil in the strict sense of the phrase reflected steady moral improvement. Education and appeals to public sentiment seemed to be producing encouraging results. However, a sinister recrudescence of law and mob violence has challenged the attention of the authorities of several States. Kidnaping and flogging "parties" have been reported. These gross outrages have been reported. These gross outrages have been reported.

NEW YIDDISH THEATER
OPENS IN NEW YORK

Schildkraut and Satzin Are Too Much Subordinated in Moderately Amusing Play.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—At Thomashefsky Theater.

Boris Thomashefsky, Rudolph Schildkraut and Ludwig Satzin, "Three Little Business Men."

Harry Thomashefsky presents comedy in Yiddish-American business life in three acts by Boris M. Carter, with music by Joseph Cherniavsky.

The gathering of stars which proprietors of the new Yiddish Broadway theater hope to devote into a constant constellation shows trifling duty at their opening Monday night. Thomashefsky has taken to himself the major part in the proceedings. Satzin and Schildkraut are so subordinated by the character of their material that their talents have little opportunity to glitter.

The piece is a comedy of business life. Alexander Danilevsky meets certain Jew-about-town who persuades him that the extensive manufacture of kvass, the Russian national drink, will make him vastly rich in worldly goods. As a third party they sign a certain Mr. Smith, who previous business training has been confined to cleaning windows.

As the flood of kvass leads on fortune various complications follow their business life in shallow and in misery. These complications are moderately amusing. On the whole the production is an adequate, hardly auspicious inaugural for the Yiddish season among the white lights.

ST. LOUIS AD CLUB HONORS
ORIGINAL "BECKY THATCHER"

Hannibal, Mo., Woman, Chum Mark Twain, Hears Author Praised by Speakers.

The St. Louis Advertising Club luncheon at Hotel Statler yesterday greeted the original "Becky Thatcher" of "Tom Sawyer," ranked Mark Twain with Shakespeare and the Twain to a talk by Wilbur Nease, a member of the William Rank Advertising Agency of New York City.

Mrs. Laura Hawkins Frazer, years old, of Hannibal, Mo., a good playmate of the famous humorist, sat in the place of honor at the speaker's table. Speakers mentioned the campaign now on to raise money for a Mark Twain memorial park at Florida, Mo., and stated that as England had Stratford-on-Avon, so Missouri may have its Mark Twain memorial park with Shakespeare. He then proceeded to deliver an address on "Human Side of It."

The Lord's Prayer and Lincoln Gettysburg address are masterpieces of advertising copy. Nease said, because they are so human.

MISSOURI TO SEND RHODES
SCHOLARS TO OXFORD IN 1924

He Will Have Three Years at Eminent College Selection in December.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Sept. 5.—Missouri is to have the privilege of sending a Rhodes Scholar to Oxford for three years, beginning Oct. 1, 1924. The University of Missouri has an enrollment of 5,000 to 6,000 students. It may nominate five candidates for the scholarship.

These candidates will be selected by the local Nominating Committee at Columbia. The committee will hold its meeting and elect from the candidates representing various colleges of the State the Missouri Rhodes Scholar.

Representatives will be selected the basis of quality of manhood, force of character and leadership, literary and scholastic ability and attainment; physical vigor as shown by interest in outdoor sports or other ways. The usual Rhodes scholar should excel in all the qualifications, but in the absence of such an ideal combination the committee will prefer a man who shows distinction in one or two fields, personality or of intellect, over one who shows a lower degree of excellence in both. The authorities said.

Participation and interest in open air and athletic pursuits form an essential qualifications for a Rhodes scholar, but not to be treated as equal importance with other requirements.

CONSIDER 12 MONTHS OF SCHOOL

Chicago Board May Also Lengthen Day to Remedy Congestion.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—Faced with lack of school room facilities for thousands of the 565,000 school children enrolled yesterday in Chicago's public and parochial schools, school authorities are considering putting the schools of the city on a 12-month plan. This, they declare, is the only suggested remedy for caring for every child of school age in the city. Lengthening of the school day, starting at 8 a. m. and continuing until 4:45 p. m., with students alternating in the time of classes, is the present plan for lessening the congestion.

WHEAT LOSS ESTIMATED AT 12 CENTS A BUSHEL

Compilation by U. S. Fixes Production Cost at $1.23 and Sale Price at $1.41.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Reports compiled by the Department of Agriculture from 4000 farmers in all parts of the country show an average production cost of 1932 for wheat of $1.23 a bushel; for corn, 66 cents, and for oats, 53 cents. Against these figures, the average sale price realized on the crop was $1.11 a bushel for wheat, 73 cents for corn and 48 cents for oats.

"The cost figures," the department said in announcing the compilation today, "include charges for the labor of the operator and his family and for use of the land. Where the price received for the product was less than the cost, the farmer did not receive going wages for his time or did not receive for the use of his land an amount equal to the cash rental value."

The department added that it felt the figures "closely approximate the production cost incurred by farmers throughout the country during the period covered."

The $1.23 cost of producing a bushel of wheat was developed 44 per cent for preparation of seed bed, planting, harvesting, threshing and marketing, 25 per cent for land rent, 12 per cent for fertilizer and manure, 9 per cent for seed and 8 per cent for miscellaneous cost.

Of the 66 cents on corn, 55 per cent was figured for man and horse labor in preparing seed bed, planting, cultivating, harvesting and marketing, 16 per cent for land rent and manure, 26 per cent for seed, 23 per cent for land rent and 7 per cent for miscellaneous items, including depreciation on machinery and storage buildings, crop insurance, etc.

Fifty per cent of the 48 cents cost for oats was figured for the labor of producing and for marketing, 8 per cent for seed, 22 per cent for land rent and 8 per cent for miscellaneous costs.

Minimizing Plight of Wheat Farmer Is Mistake, Congressman Says.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—Minimizing the plight of the American wheat farmer because other divisions of the farming industry are in a more prosperous condition was characterized as a "well-nigh fatal mistake" by Congressman Sydney O. Anderson of Minnesota, president of the Wheat Council of the United States, at a meeting of the directors' reorganization here today.

Efforts to belittle the condition of the wheat farmer are capable of producing a dangerous apathy concerning the present impoverishment of more than a third of all the farmers in the United States, he declared.

"The investment in wheat farming is nearly one-third more than the total capital, surplus and undivided profits of all the national banks in America," he said. "The wheat farmers are 34 1/2 per cent of all the farmers in the United States. Wheat farm investment is nearly four times as much as the total investment in all the coal mines in the United States."

The fact that farmers raising products other than wheat are more prosperous was characterized as "a life saver for the country." If all other farmers were in the condition of the wheat growers a general calamity for agriculture would result, Congressman Anderson asserted. Nineteen per cent of the American farms changed occupants last year, he said, adding that tenant farms are on the increase and that one-fourth of all the tenant farms changed tenants last year, while 6 per cent of the farms changed owners.

WARRANTS IN LABEL CASE

Bottler and Sons Accused of Having Counterfeit Liquor Paper.

Federal warrants charging possession of counterfeit Government revenue stamps for whiskey bottles were issued yesterday against Sam Brickman, owner of the Central American Bottling Co., 2233 Carr street, and his two sons, Max, 27, and Jack, 17. They were released on bonds of $2500 each and their hearings set for Sept. 18.

Three weeks ago policemen with a State search warrant raided the place in search of liquor. They found no liquor but seized a package containing 10,000 fraudulent revenue stamps and labels for various brands of whiskey, including counterfeit labels for prescription whiskey, warning the purchaser that it is for medicinal purposes only. The Brickmans said they knew nothing of the labels and explained their possession as possibly due to a customer having mistakenly left them in their place.

Klansman Not Recorded as Jesuit.

Authorities of St. Louis University, headquarters of the Missouri Province of the Society of Jesus (Jesuit Order), say they have no record of William Ballinger, one of the speakers at the Ku Klux Klan picnic at Collinsville Labor day, who described himself as an ex-Jesuit priest. The records of the order extending back over a period of 300 years, are available at the university, and it is said they do not contain Ballinger's name. Wisconsin, which he claims as his home, is in the Missouri Province.

YOUTHFUL ROBBERS SENTENCED

Terms of Two Commuted to Five Years in Reformatory.

Walter Detrich, alias Reed, 19 years old, and Leon R. McGee, alias Hines, 19, entered pleas of guilty to two charges of first-degree robbery yesterday before Circuit Judge Grimm and were sentenced to five years in the penitentiary on each charge. The sentences, which are to run concurrently, thus being reduced to five years each, were commuted to five-year terms in the Booneville Reformatory. The youths held up and robbed Nathan Wieselmann, Aug. 2, in a drug store at 2801 South Jefferson avenue, of $17 and a watch, and Edwin Deffa, 3435 Hartford street, of $37 earlier the same day.

They were caught in the act of robbing Wieselmann by a patrolman, who shot McGee in the arm. McGee appeared in court with his arm in a sling.

Clean Men

Men who enjoy cleaning up as a boy enjoys a swim

THE best part of the world's work must be done by men who are big and men who are clean.

Take the railroad engineers—Nothing could be more useful than the work they do; few men carry so much responsibility.

If you ever knew a locomotive engineer you know how he enjoyed being clean—how he loved the luxury of washing. He never felt safe until he felt clean.

Lifebudy Health Soap is a great favorite with railroad men and their families.

They find that Lifebudy not only cleans deeper and better—it also destroys invisible germs. Then, too, it is a soap that can be used frequently and generously on tender skin. It heals and soothes, and destroys the least trace of skin odor.

It is because of Lifebudy's antiseptic properties that this soap is regarded as a great aid to family health.

The copious Lifebudy lather releases a wonderful substance which removes all dangerous germ life that lodges on the skin. You can smell this antiseptic—a cleanly, wholesome odor which vanishes almost instantly.

Lifebudy is absolutely pure—its bland oils of palm fruit and coconut are soothing and keep the skin in splendid condition. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

Mother—be sure that a cake of Lifebudy is ready when your husband and children come home from work or play. Once they know it, no other soap satisfies. It costs little—yet its health protection is priceless.

GAINS RECORDED IN STOCK MARKET; BONDS IMPROVE

Short-Covering Factor in Price Trend—Less Apprehension Over Effects of Japanese Disaster—Sterling Declines, Then Reacts.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Sales to 2 p. m. on the New York Stock Exchange today were 422,100 shares, compared with 435,000 yesterday. Sales to noon were 247,300. Total sales today were 869,400 shares, compared with 882,000 yesterday. The closing prices of the Japanese disaster bonds were today's high, low and closing prices for stocks on the New York Exchange. Net changes for the day are also given:

Yesterday's apprehensions over the effects of the Japanese disaster, having been largely dissipated by the comparatively modest amount of selling which came from nervous and bearish investors, a second thoughts on the nature of the economic forces involved, today's market showed a distinct recovery of equilibrium. A certain amount of uncertainty was still in evidence at the start of trading on the Stock Exchange but this was quickly absorbed in a little more than irregularity and was succeeded by a good rally. Short covering and a resumption of bullish activity both contributed to the recovery. At the close numerous issues showed gains of one and two points. Yesterday's losses were, in other words, fully recovered. Bonds also were somewhat better, even the Japanese issues showing some improvement. Call money, meanwhile, eased materially, the opening rate of 3 1/2 per cent being shaded to 5 per cent during the noon hour and to 4 1/2 per cent after the start of the last hour.

Sterling Exchange Irregular. Movement in the foreign exchange market was somewhat weak in the morning but improved later. Sterling in London dropped to a new low of $4.80, before the market opened on this side. The low point reached here was $4.80, but on the recovery the price moved up to $4.82, which represented a gain of 1/4 of a cent over yesterday. French francs also broke 5 points and then rallied 2 1/2 points to 5 1/2 cents. The German mark, meanwhile, rose from 2 1/2 to 3 1/2 cents to the dollar, a decline of 1/2 cent from yesterday's last quotation. Wheat likewise was somewhat firmer on the improvement in export demand, and the September at $1.05 showed a net gain of 1/4 of a cent.

Steel Industry Situation. "Although some time must elapse before the extent of the damage from earthquake and fire in Japan is known and although several months more will be required accurately to gauge the volume and character of new construction which will be necessary, the steel trade is already in receipt of inquiries for shipments of sheets are being planned and the iron axe points out that the decline in the volume of production during August, pig iron prices, however, have firmed up, due principally to advancing quotations for coke on account of the anthracite miners strike and September orders for finished steel are expected to reach full proportions."

FROM NOW ON

By FRANK L. PACKARD.

A CONTINUED STORY

"WHAT do you mean—all, or none?" he said, a hint of menace creeping into his voice.

"Just that," said Millman, and his tones were low and serious now.

"Just what I said—all, or none."

Dave Henderson laughed shortly.

"Then I guess it'll be—none!"

he said coolly.

"Perhaps," admitted Millman

slowly. "But I hope not."

He leaned forward now, earnestly, over the table. "Dave," he said steadily,

"let us get back to the old pal days again when we believed in each other, just man to man, Dave;

because now you've got a chip on your shoulder. I don't want to knock that chip off; I want to talk to you. I want to tell you why I committed what you have rightly called a theft in going to that pigeon-cote and taking that money.

And I want to try and make you understand that my life in prison and the story that I told you there, in spite of the fact that I have

'stolen' the money now, was not a lie. There is not a soul on this wide earth, Dave, except yourself, who knows that Charles Millman served two years in the penitentiary with prison stripes on his back. If it were known I think it would mean ruin to me, certainly in a social sense, very probably in a commercial sense as well. And yet, Dave, I would rather you knew it than that you didn't. Does that sound strange? Well, somehow,

I've never pictured the flaring headlines that would be in every paper in this city if I were exposed —because, well, because I couldn't picture it—not through you, Dave —and that's the only way it could come about. And so you see, Dave,

I did not ask you for faith in me without reposing my own faith in you in the same full measure."

Dave Henderson's brows gathered.

He stared at the other. It was like the Charlie Millman of old talking

now. But the whole business was queer—except that the money lay here now within reach of his hand

after five years of hell and torture.

He made no comment.

"And so, Dave, what could I do?" Millman went on. "As far as I could see then, and as far as I can see now, I had no choice but to offer to get that money from its hiding-place. I knew you meant literally what you said when you swore you'd fight for it if all the police in America were blocking your way, and that you'd either get it or go down and out. I knew you'd do that; I knew the police would watch you, and I feared for you either physical harm or an other long prison sentence. And so I took the money and shared your guilt. But, Dave, once I was committed to that act, I was committed to another as well—I hadn't any choice then, either—I mean,

Dave, the return of the money to the estate where it belongs."

Dave Henderson was on his feet.

His face, that had softened and relaxed as Millman was speaking, was suddenly hard and set again,

and now a red, angry flush was dyeing his cheeks. He choked for his words.

"What's that you say?" he rasped

out. "Return it!" He laughed raucously. "Have you been drinking, Millman—or are you just crazy?"

A strange, whimsical smile crept to Millman's lips.

"No," he said. "I guess I'm what you called me—just a straight crook. I can't see any other way out, Dave. I've stolen the money too, and it's up to me as well as you. It's got to go back."

"By God—no!" said Dave Henderson through his teeth. "No! You understand—no!"

Millman shook his head slowly.

"Dave, it's no good," he said think Dave Henderson is dead. The book is closed, slammed shut forever—understand? I'm dead—but I've got this money now that I've fought for, and paid for with the sweat of hell, and it's going to pay me back now, Millman! Understand? It's going to pay the dividends now that I've earned—and that, by God, no man is going to take away from me!"

"Good old Dave!" said Millman softly. "That's what's the matter with you—you'd drop in your tracks before you'd let go. If only you weren't looking through the wrong glasses, Dave, you'd fight just as hard the other way. No, I don't want to preach to you, and I'm not going to preach; but there's a great big bond, two years of prison together, between you and me, and I want you to listen to me. You were never meant for a crook, Dave. There's not a crooked thing in the world about you, except this one distorted brain kink that's got hold of you. And now you're in wrong. Look at it from any angle that you like, and it doesn't pay. It hasn't paid you so far—and it never will."

"Hasn't it!" snapped Dave Henderson. "Well, maybe not! But that's because it hasn't had the chance. But the chance is here now, and it's all but wide open. You can forget everything else, Millman, except just this; and then you'll understand once for all where I stand: Here's the money—and I'm dead!"

"Your soul isn't," said Millman bluntly.

Dave Henderson's jaws set.

"That's enough!" he flung out

curtly. "Once for all—no!"

Millman did not answer for a moment, nor did he look at Dave

Henderson—his eyes, through the curling cigarette smoke, were fixed on the package of banknotes.

"I'm sorry, Dave," he said at last, in a low, strained way. "I'm sorry you won't take the biggest chance you'll ever have in your life,

the chance you've got right now, of coming across a white man clean through. I thought perhaps you would. I hoped you would, Dave—and so I'm sorry. But that doesn't alter my position any. The money has got to go back to the estate, and it is going back."

Woman Artist
Doing Fresco on Church SteepleMiss Schmidt of Denmark Puffs at Cork-Tip Cigarette as She Paints.

By Fay Stevenson.

NEW YORK.—There's a very pretty girl with Titian hair and twinkling blue eyes doing cement fresco work on the steeple of St. Mark's Church in the Bowery.

She's wearing white linen trousers, white shoes and stockings, and a white smock with just a suggestion of the colors here and there which she is putting into the fresco. Her reddish yellow hair is done up in a coil and bound back by a broad bandeau of Oriental silk. And she's puffing a cork-tip cigarette while she works!

"And why not?" asks this pretty young woman, who is Miss Wilhelmina Schmidt, a Danish artist, who has come to this country to make her mark in art. "All the European girls think nothing of taking a puff when they feel like it, and I have noticed a number of American girls smoking over their coffee cups. Then, why should the people, passing in the street below, care if I take a smoke between working periods, or when I am busy doing a bit of fresco? If it is the thing for girls to do nowadays what difference does it make whether the puff is taken on the tympanum of the church or in some restaurant?"

So that's that. Miss Schmidt came to this country about three years ago from her home in Denmark. She is a student of the Royal Academy in Copenhagen and has done a great deal of mural painting in her own country.

"This is the first time I have ever done any outside work in New York," she said, "and I hope from now on all my work will be in the open. To get out on some building and look off into the open is delightful. I love to work on this church early in the morning. It is beautiful—inspiring!"

She lighted a match on the sole of her white canvas shoe, bent her Titian hair over its flame until the cigarette in her mouth was lit and went laughing to work again. Her fresco work will extend to the top of the steeple, but she declares she was never dizzy in her life.

draft or small mechanism which helps transform coal gas into heat. This device automatically controls the draft so that it needs less attention, and saves a really large amount of coal on whatever type of heating it is installed. Do not forget also the humidifier, which may be located near the boiler or the types which fit the separate radiator. Experts tell us that moist air is more healthful and warmer than dry air and that the plant fitted with a good humidifier also burns less coal.

Practically every heating plant has special "spare parts" and now is the time to order them if needed. It generally requires several weeks to secure such parts from a distant factory, and a little later everybody will be needing stove shakers and new fire pots and you will be delayed in receiving yours. By all means have every heating device of appliance in your home looked over within the next two weeks and any necessary part ordered at once.

ARCHITECTURE.

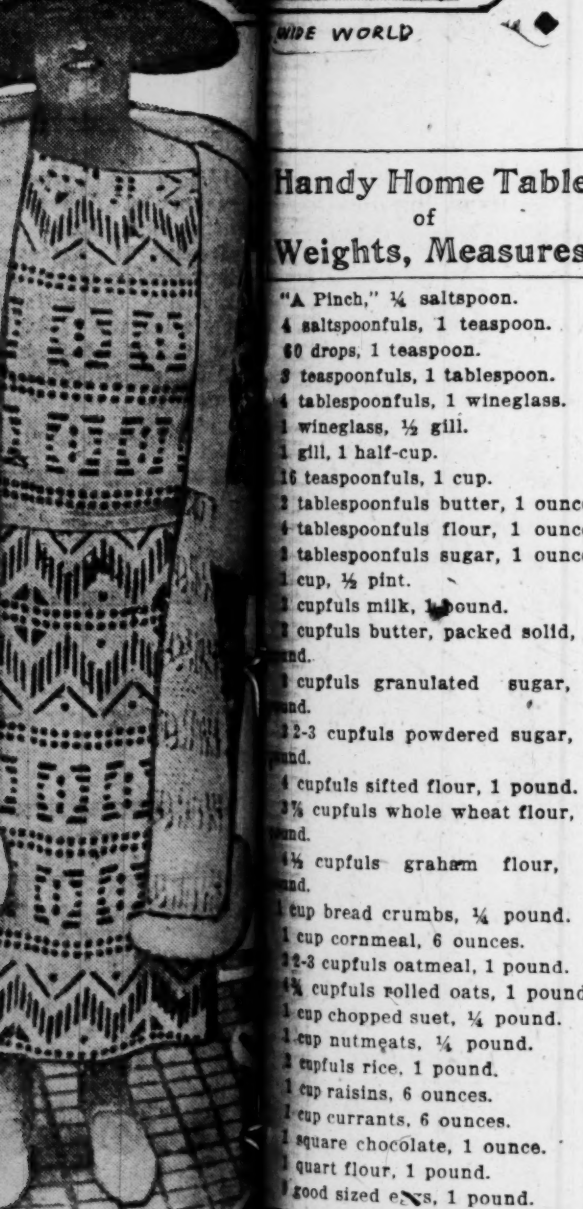

THEY'RE building houses here and there, for Beauville's on the boom; the clang of hammers fills the air, the sawdust spreads perfume. To right and left new dwellings rise to please each taste or mood; they come in every price and size, in brick or stone or wood. Some look to be expensive things, worked out in foreign style, with galleries and service wings and roofs of fancy tile. Italian villas find a place beside a Swiss chalet, while stately English houses grace the lots across the way. Now,

I am not an architect and so I cannot say, in houses, what one should expect of any land or day. Where ingie-nooks and doors belong, I simply do not know; I get the periods all wrong and—what's a patio? At planning I would be too raw for any architect; the wild designs that I would draw would have his prospects wrecked. And yet, I always love to see new houses where I roam, for any house looks fine to me, just so it means a home! A place where folks may spend their days with worldly cares shut out, whose walls will echo children's plays, the ringing laugh and shout; a place where friends will come to rest when twilight shadows creep, a place where love is tenderest in times when one must weep. I welcome every house I see, hiproof or lofty dome, for every house looks great to me, just so it means a home!

You Don't Have to Be 'Mushy'

Affection Is Not Measured in Foolish Forms of Endearment That Have No Real Meaning.

By Betty Vincent

LOVE letters! Those letters written in purple ink or upon a delicate paper, with the stamps upside down to indicate love. How they thrill one! And how one does learn to love that jovial postman who brings such good tidings from Cupid.

And yet—
 The girl who knows never allows her love letters to become "too mushy." She does not write the type of love letter that she would be ashamed to show her mother or his mother. She does not pen endearing terms which compromise her quite as much as if she wrote her heart upon her sleeve.

True love is not expressed in a large amount of "dears," "darlings" and pet names. It does not have to express itself in the terms of a movie actress, with emphatic "I love you, I love you, I love you" sentences. It can be so well expressed and so finely put that it is a love letter without that maudlin sentiment which means so little when you come to weigh it up.

The love letter of a thinking girl breathes forth sincerity and true affection, but it does not in any way put the writer in a position in which she might not care to be later. It is a letter which could be read by a mother, a sister or any member of the family, should the young man be careless enough to leave it in his bureau drawer or in some discarded suit of clothes.

Many a girl has written a love letter which has fallen into the hands of members of a young man's family. Probably up to that time his mother and family thought her a very splendid young woman, but after a silly, maudlin, sentimental letter, this young girl will never stand high in their estimation again. It may even mean that the young man will not call again because of home influence.

A love letter can be full of wit, of what one does during the day, what one saw and how one feels. It can express personality and one's innermost thoughts without bordering on the sentimental and unasked-for love declarations. It can touch upon romance, allude to certain memorable instances, but it should never at any time become so "soft" and "mushy" that it is not the thing for other eyes to see.

The prudent mother always asks to see the letters a young man writes to her daughter. "Let me see what type of letter he writes and I can tell you something of his character," she says. And it is well for the girl who is in love to remember that there is a mother at the home where she is sending her love letters. It is perfectly natural that she should wonder just a little about this girl who has gained her son's affection. If the letters are maudlin and silly she can't possibly have the right feeling toward the woman who may be her son's wife.

Nor is this the only reason a girl should guard her pen. Love letters should be a matter of self-respect. They represent you. They stand for you and it is never advisable to let your emotions rather than your gray matter get the better of you. Never write a love letter which cannot be read before the Court of Conventions!

Children's Bedtime Story ::

By Thornton W. Burgess

When proven wrong the thing to do is say you only thought you knew. —Peter Rabbit.

PETER sat on the bank of the Smiling Pool and kept saying over to himself, "A Chuck won't swim of his own accord. No, sir, a Chuck won't swim of his own accord. I just know it. I suppose one could if he had to, but that is the only time he would do it. I am sorry if I have offended Grandfather Frog and Jerry Muskrat by not believing that that young Chuck over on the other side swam across. But I don't believe it, and I won't believe it. So there!"

Peter sat for a long time staring across to the other bank where a little way back was the shining doorstep of the new Chuck home. He didn't believe that that young Chuck living there was Johnny Chuck's runaway son. He was sure it must be some other young Chuck who had been born on the other side of the Laughing Brook and the Smiling Pool.

Presently the owner of that home appeared and sat up on his doorstep. He was too far away for Peter to recognize him. He sat there for a long time, and Peter remained right where he was watching. At last the young Chuck went over to a patch of sweet clover by his home and began to eat. How Peter did wish he could get over there and talk to him! But he couldn't without swimming, and Peter doesn't like the water.

He had about decided to go on his way when the young Chuck stopped eating and began to waddle down toward the lower end of the Laughing Brook.

"He must be going down for a drink," thought Peter.

When the young Chuck reached the edge of the water he sat down on some overhanging ferns where he was hidden from Peter's sight. Then Peter saw Jerry Muskrat swimming just in front of where he knew the young Chuck was sitting. He heard Jerry's squeaky voice. "Hello, young Chuck," said Jerry. "I was told this morning that you can't swim."

"Then somebody didn't know what they were talking about," replied the young Chuck. "Who was it?"

"Peter Rabbit," replied Jerry Muskrat. "He didn't believe that I saw you swim across the Laughing Brook the other day. He says Chucks never swim unless they happen to fall in the water and have to."

"Is that so?" exclaimed the young Chuck. "Is that so? Well, Peter Rabbit may have been out in the Great World a great deal longer than I have, but it is quite clear that he doesn't know as much as he might. The other day I found some extra tender grass across there on the other side of the Laughing Brook, and I have a notion I would like some of it right now."

With this the young Chuck walked right into the Laughing Brook and began to swim. Peter's eyes looked as if they would pop right out of his head. Yes, sir, they did so. He hurried along the bank to the point where the young Chuck would come out of the water. The young Chuck came out right where Peter was sitting.

"Well, Peter, is there anything the matter with your eyes?" demanded the squeaky voice of Jerry Muskrat, who was swimming just behind the young Chuck.

"No-o," said Peter slowly. Then he did the right thing. He told Jerry Muskrat that he was sorry he hadn't believed him. And so it was that Peter learned what is a fact, that sometimes Chucks do swim.

Scientific Starch Discovery Banishes Ironing Troubles

EVERY woman knows that one of the greatest annoyances is working with starch that forms a thick, sticky jelly the moment it is cool. This heavy, pasty starch clots and smears your fabrics, and often causes your iron to stick.

All this trouble has now been overcome with Linit, the new scientific starch.

New Starch Discovery

THIS remarkable starch is made by an improved process that keeps it fluid after it cools. You are never troubled with clotting, smearing or "blistering." Linit penetrates every thread of the fabric, helps prevent wear, and strengthens the material.

Linit gives ordinary cotton goods an attractive linen finish and your Linit-starched garments remain clean and fresh much longer.

Important to you

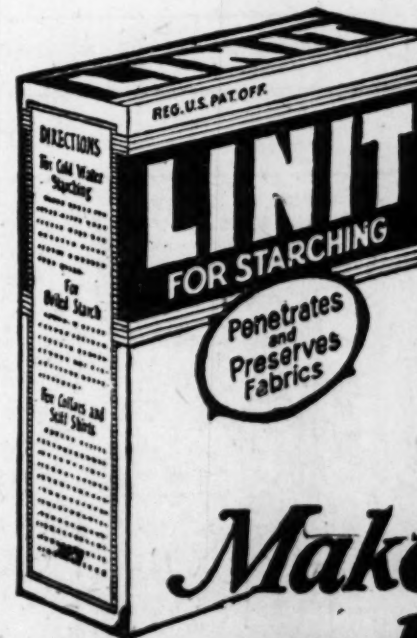

AFTER Linit is thoroughly dissolved according to directions, and ready for use, you will notice it is THIN and FREE-RUNNING LIKE WATER—with a "milky" appearance. Be sure to use Linit according to directions, and, unlike other starches, you will not find Linit stiff or jelly-like. This is one reason why Linit goes much further than the old-fashioned kind of starches and is easier to iron with.

Linit costs 10c at all grocers

Get a package and begin the modern way of starching your fabrics. Perfection in starching guaranteed or your money refunded.

Linit is made by the Corn Products Refining Company—makers of the famous Argo Starch—Karo Syrup and Mazola Salad and Cooking Oil.

DEDICATED TO THE LEGAL PROFESSION.

THE scene was a courthouse in a Missouri town. The occasion was a criminal trial and the two principal performers were a colored witness for the State—by name Jefferson White—and a lawyer for the defense, whose name doesn't matter.

Jefferson White, having duly been sworn, gave testimony on behalf of the prosecution. Counsel for the defendant now took him in hand for cross-examination. If he meant to save his client it was necessary for the attorney materially to weaken the force and effect of the evidence which just had been offered. Assuming a stern expression the lawyer began:

"Jefferson, exactly where were you standing at the precise moment when you claim to have seen the beginning of this alleged crime?"

It was plain that the person on the stand was daunted by the manner of his interrogator.

"Well, suh," he began, "I thinks"—

"Never mind what you think," broke in the attorney. "This jury is not interested in your mental processes, if any such there be. Tell us what you know. Now, will you be so good as to inform us just where you were standing at the time when you say you observed the striking of the first blow."

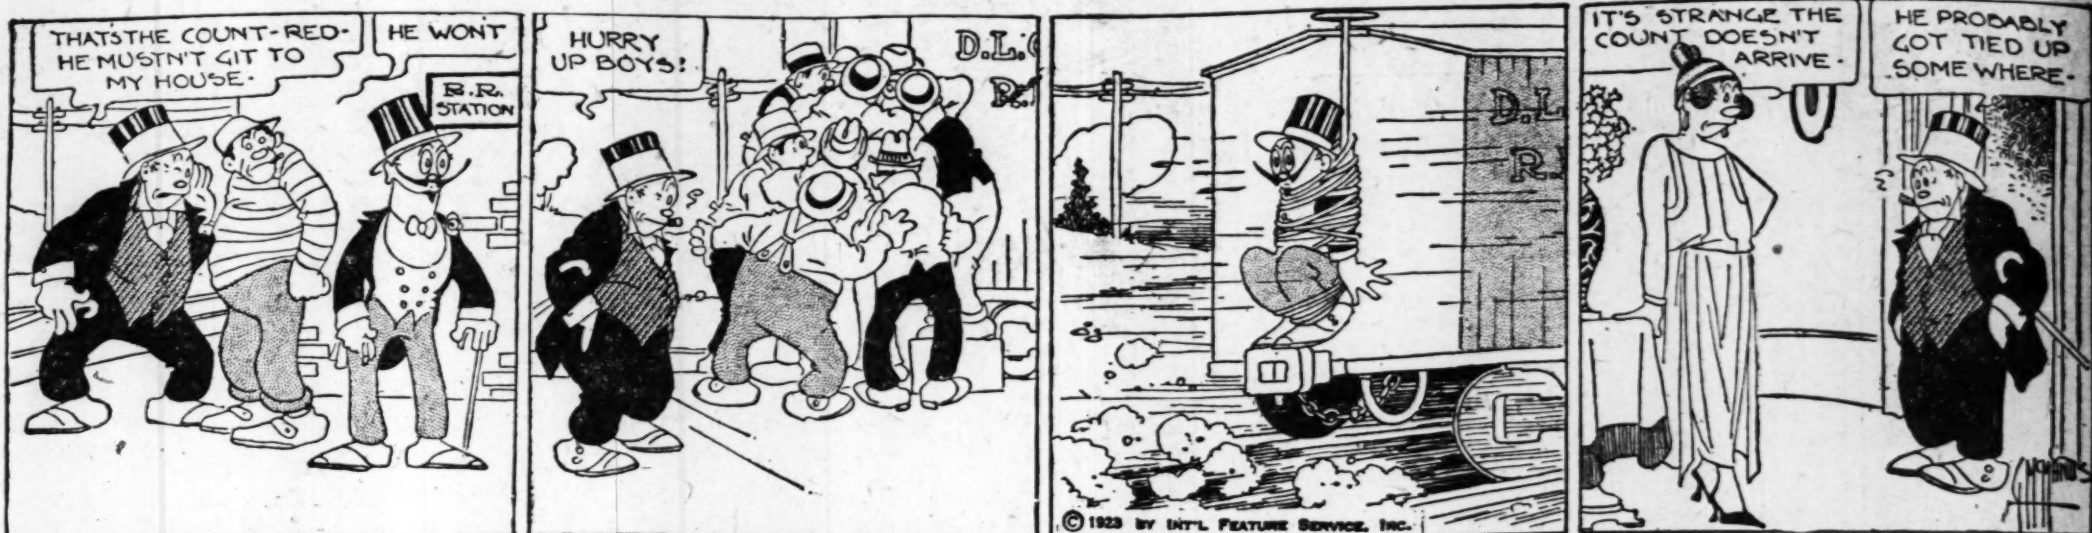

"I thinks, suh," repeated the pestered witness. "I thinks dat"—

"Hold on!" bellowed the counsel. "Didn't I tell you that we felt no concern in what you think?"

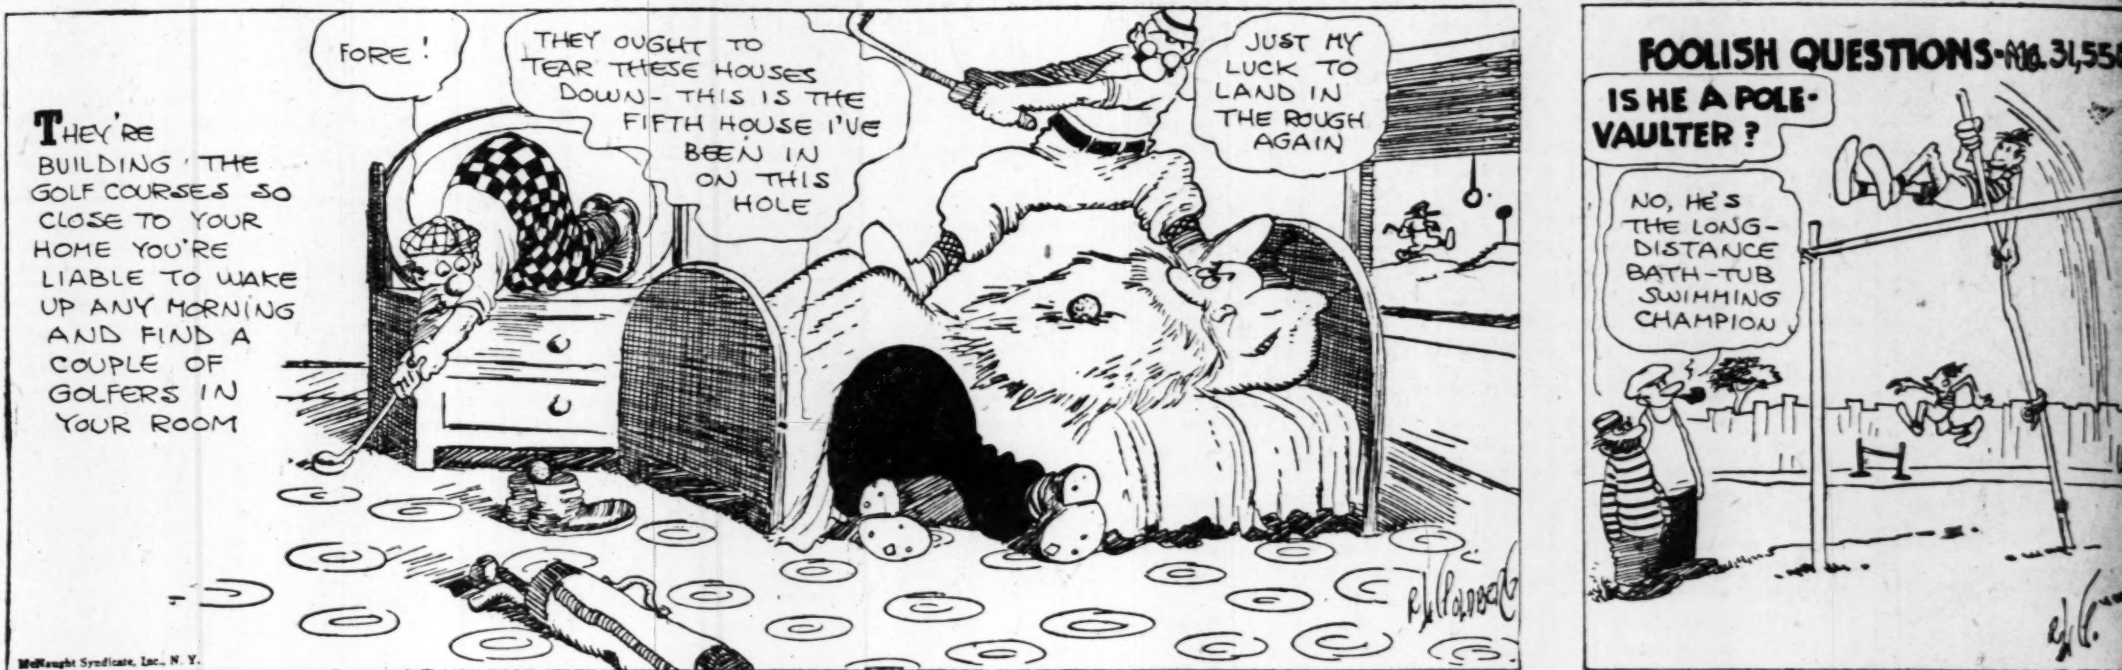

"Scuse me, please, suh," apologized Jefferson, "but, boss, de trouble wid me is dat, seein' I ain't no lawyer, I has to think befo' I speaks."

COUNCIL OF LEAGUE MAY ACT TODAY ON GREEK APPEAL

Members Confer Privately in Efforts to Reach Tentative Accord on Italo-Greek Issue and Thereby Prevent Split at Geneva Meeting to Be Held at 5 P. M.

DELEGATES AWAIT OFFICIAL ORDERS

Italy, in Opposing Intervention, Asserts Right to Defend Her National Dignity Is Paramount to Place in League.

By the Associated Press. GENEVA, Sept. 6.—The effort of the League of Nations' Council to reach some agreement on the Greek-Italian situation constituted the reason for the sudden decision to hold no session of the assembly today.

Lord Robert Cecil and other members of the council desire to go before the assembly with something definite, for they realize that if the world nations met together as a forum before any tangible results were obtained there doubtless would be a forensic explosion on the floor.

The assembly, as a whole, is looking to the council to take some action on the Italian question, and the council, as the executive body, is concerned above all things with saving the League of Nations and preventing any dangerous split.

Members in Private Session. A meeting of the council was arranged for 5 o'clock this afternoon. An earlier private session of the members was held at which Signor Salandra, the Italian representative, was not present.

There has been extensive telegraphing by the delegations to their various Governments asking definite instructions on the great question of the day, which has removed all interest from the problems figuring on the agenda of the conference.

M. Politis, former Foreign Minister under Venizelos and chief representative of Greece, said today the tension seemed to have lightened somewhat, but he added that the problem of the Italian occupation of Corfu had offered supreme difficulties. Much interest is felt here in possible action by the Council of Ambassadors in Paris, to which Greece also has appealed.

Urges Ruling by Ambassadors. Signor Salandra's entire argument for Italy yesterday was that the question arising from the assassination of the Italian mission should be settled by the Council of Ambassadors and not by the league, because it was the ambassadorial body which had appointed the mission to fix the frontier between Albania and Greece. That body was the living organism of the great peace conference and was empowered with the execution of the terms of the treaties.

The head of the Italian delegation accused Greece of cleverly seeking to escape from her responsibility and of diverting world attention from the murder of the Italian officers to Italy's seizure of Corfu, by denouncing this seizure as an act of dangerous aggression.

It was not Signor Salandra, but Mussolini, who seemed to be addressing the council. As the good-natured appearing former Premier read his faithful message the crowded chamber thought to hear in fancy the voice of Salandra, but that of the Fascist chief and leader.

Denies Menacing World Peace. No State would wish to belong to the league, read Signor Salandra, if membership meant renunciation of the right to defend its national dignity. Italy had not menaced world peace and there was not sufficient reason for the application of the articles of the covenant cited by Greece, which were founded on the supposition that danger of war existed.
